FIFTH ARMY SCORES SWEEPING VICTORY

Americans Capture Five Villages On The Eastern Sector

British Troops Between Capua and the Sea Sweep Over Difficult River Barrier at All Points on U. S.-Made Bridges

By WES GALLAGHER
Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 19.—(P)—The battle of the Volturno river has ended in victory for the Fifth Army with the American and British troops crossing the river at all points, it was announced today.

American troops captured five villages on the eastern sector of the Fifth Army line in a sweeping advance of from three to five miles. Simultaneously British troops between Capua and the sea swept over the difficult river barrier at all points on bridges constructed by American engineers.

NAZIS RUSH RESERVES TO THE UKRAINE

Some of Bitterest Fighting Of Russian Campaign Rages Inside City of Melitopol

THOUSANDS ENGULFED

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—The Germans were reported rushing reinforcements from their Crimean manpower reservoir today in a desperate attempt to hold the south Ukraine strongholds of Melitopol in the face of Russian offensives from the east and north aimed at cracking that gateway to the Crimea and engulfing the hundreds of thousands of Nazi troops in the great peninsula.

Some of the bitterest fighting of the war was raging inside of Melitopol itself, the Russians said. Crack Russian divisions under Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky, having battered their way more than four miles deeper into the Dnieper river bend from captured Zaporizhze to flank Nazi armies in that salient, were pounding southward toward a probable juncture with Gen. Fedor Tolbukhin, leading the main drive against Melitopol from the east.

Russian troops "are throwing the enemy back, destroying his forces, and clearing him from one populated place after another," the Russian communiqué declared. Berlin said that more than 300,000 Red army troops were plunging south from Zaporizhze and acknowledged that Nazi forces were giving ground. Moscow said 23 towns were liberated, 4,000 Germans slain, scores of tanks and guns captured or destroyed and all enemy counter-attacks smashed and hurled back in this drive.

Fresh Russian gains were announced below Gomel. The Nazi White Russian base north of Kiev, where Soviet troops who had crossed the Dnieper in a new advance were striking toward Rechitsa, 27 miles west of Gomel.

The new reports of sinkings and damaging of enemy craft included 98 ships sunk, 5 probably sunk and 45 damaged. Previous communiques had listed 221 as sunk, 31 probably sunk and 60 as damaged.

The figures, contained in a communiqué released by Secretary of the Navy Knox at a press conference, included 148 enemy transports, cargo ships, tankers and miscellaneous vessels not previously listed as struck by torpedoes in the war against Japanese shipping.

Tri-Partite Conference Under Way

WAGE DISPUTE RESULTING IN COAL FAMINE

Operators Disagree With Each Other on Contract Terms, as Union Men Refuse to Arbitrate

ICKES ISSUES APPEAL

Washington, Oct. 19.—(P)—Another coal crisis reared up today. Operators disagreed with each other on contract terms, union men in some mines stuck to their "no contract, no work" stand and home owners who use soft coal already are starting to feel the pinch of an incipient shortage.

Many of the elements which existed last spring—when there were three walkouts—were discernible as the War Labor Board (WLB), the operators, and the United Mine Workers (UMW) sought terms acceptable all around.

The government dropped its control of the mines last week, with Interior Secretary Ickes expressing a wish that the owners and the workers "could reach a contract so as to boost lagging production. Alabama miners promptly went on strike. Today they were returning slowly, at the request of UMW President John L. Lewis. But steel output in the section has been reduced.

Lewis, in appealing to the miners, said he believed the WLB would accept a proposed contract between Illinois miners and the Illinois Soft Coal Producers Association, raising wages approximately $1.75 a day. This contract was considered as a possible guide for the entire bituminous industry.

The Appalachian and Pennsylvania coal operators—the bulk of the producers—rejected the Illinois terms last night. They sent a telegram to WLB Chairman William H. Davis, saying they would (Turn to Page Two)

Figures In Hex Slaying Seek Pardons

Harrisburg, Oct. 19.—(P)—The commutation plea of the last of three men sent to prison in 1929 for the York county "hex murder" of Nelson Reyneyer will be heard by the state pardons board at its October 27-28 sessions.

The plea will be made by John Blymire, who, with John Curry, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary, in a strange case involving a lock of hair and a spell said to have been cast on the mother of one of the accused by hex, a colloquial word meaning witchcraft.

Curry was released in 1939, as was Wilbert Ness, who had been convicted of second degree murder and given a 10 to 20 year sentence.

Pardon board records show the trio went to Reyneyer's cabin to seek a lock of hair which they thought would "break a spell" cast on Hess' mother. Curry was accused of hitting Reyneyer with a piece of kindling wood during a struggle and the others were charged with binding the man in a chair and setting the fire to his cabin.

The board also will hear applications of 19 others serving life imprisonment sentences for first degree murder.

Third War Loan Drive Topped Three Billion

Washington, Oct. 19.—(P)—The American people, asked to raise $15,000,000,000 for the Third War Loan Drive, hit that goal and then plunked down $3,943,000,000 more toward bombers, bullets and other bad news for the Axis.

The treasury announced the final tabulations last night for the record financing campaign. Of the nearly 19 million dollars $3,377,000,000 was subscribed by individuals.

First Military Exchange Of War Prisoners

More Than 5,000 Disabled Service Men of United Nations on Way Home

17 ARE AMERICANS

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—More than 5,000 disabled Allied servicemen, including 17 Americans, who were captured by the Germans on many battlefields and who spent months and even years in prisoner of war camps, are on their way home in the war's first military prisoner exchange with Germany.

The exchange for an undisclosed number of wounded Germans in Allied hands is taking place by way of Swedish and Spanish ports. The British foreign office announced that the Americans involved would be "sent back to their homes as soon as possible after they have reached this country" and have communicated with their families.

The foreign office said the repatriation was being carried out in three separate movements, with a transfer of Allied and German casualties at Gothenburg, Sweden, a similar exchange at Barcelona, Spain, and an embarkation of German prisoners, without an exchange, at an Allied port in north-west Africa.

(The war department in Washington said the 17 Americans included four officers and 13 enlisted men.

Their names will be announced as soon as the next of kin have been notified.) (Turn to Page Two)

HITLER TALKS BUT TOPIC IS UNREVEALED

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—Adolf Hitler made a speech on Germany's political and military situation after a conference of "leading personalities of the state and party" called by Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command, the German news agency DNB announced tonight.

What the German fuhrer said was not disclosed.

U. S. Air Force Is Active In West Yunnan

Chungking, Oct. 19.—(P)—Fighter-bombers of the U. S. 14th air force, supporting Chinese ground forces in western Yunnan province, attacked Japanese troop concentrations and supply dumps at Lukou on the east bank of the Salween river Sunday and inflicted heavy casualties. Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Other American planes bombed three undefended enemy auxiliary airfields in eastern China, the announcement said.

Three Hundred Women Sought For Warren Industries Within the Next Thirty Days; Employment Office Arranges Interviews

Seven Plants in Borough Send Out Appeals For Additional Help

SITUATION IS URGENT

"We must have 300 women in Warren plants inside of the next 30 days. The women of the city must be awakened to the fact that the need is great and that they must back up their husbands, sons and brothers by taking employment where it will back up the efforts the service men are making. I am in close touch with the local labor situation due to my connection with the Management and Labor Advisory Committee and I feel Warren is not yet aware of the situation," said George Craft this morning.

The statement was made in connection with the fact that 300 women must be recruited for seven essential war plants in Warren inside of the next thirty days. In fact many of them will be needed inside of the next 15 days. The dire need of the local plants for help is evidenced by the fact that Manager David Levine of the Manpower Commission has actual orders for 300 women now. Most of these will be at work by November 1st.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the work to be done is all light machine work such as women can readily do, that no training is required and that the pay is equal to that given men for the same class of work. The War Labor Board has ruled that the stabilization of labor rules apply to women essentially the same as for men.

This evening at the Employment office an interviewer will meet women and interview them for places in one big local plant. This plant will put women to work beginning next Monday. Uniforms, etc., will be furnished for the women and this evening one of the uniforms will be on display at the Employment Office.

The campaign to enroll women from non-essential work into essential work is opening today and will be carried on until the required number is available. In the seven plants the employment of the 300 women will only be the first step and Mr. Levine stated this morning that inside of 60 days there will undoubtedly be 600 women given places in the various plants. The inroads of the draft on manpower in Warren county plants is being felt in no uncertain terms and women must replace the men.

And on top of the need for women right now there is every indication that another plant within the next few weeks will ask for 150 women and girls. Wives, sisters and sweethearts of men in the service are especially appealed to for enrollment in the lists to be given the local plants so that the lack of war supplies from Warren will not cease.

In this connection it is interesting to note that as yet the DeLuxe Metal Furniture Company has not placed its order for women with the Employment office. Manager (Turn to Page Two)

BULLETINS

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—Yugoslav patriot forces, having apparently routed German forces at a strategic railroad bridge over the Sava river near Senj, are mopping up all Slovenian territory between the river and the Austrian frontier, a Yugoslav National Army of Liberation communiqué said today.

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, prime minister of the Union of South Africa, predicted today a grand assault on Adolf Hitler's central fortress of Europe next year and said that American troops may have to play the decisive part.

Washington, Oct. 19.—(P)—Republican members of the tax-framing house ways and means committee took a solid stand today against any further federal taxes on individual or corporate incomes, in effect killing outright the administration's $10,500,000,000 new tax program.

Large Contract Secured By DeLuxe Metal Furniture Co.

H. J. Onions, of the DeLuxe Metal Furniture Company, announced today that the company has just closed a contract with the Curtiss-Wright Airplane Company for the manufacture of airplane parts. The Curtiss-Wright Company at the present is changing its plane model and is to build a better and speedier plane than the P-40, which has been one of the standard fighter planes of the American Air Force.

At the present time the DeLuxe is busy making tools for the American Aviation Company, but work on the installation of a lounge room, special toilets, etc., will be started in readiness to begin work on the new contract. This is due to the fact that women will be largely employed in the work on the plane parts. This promises to be excellent work for women, as aluminum will be used entirely in the work and it is light and much of the work will be drilling, etc., which will enable the women to perform the work with a minimum of effort. The work will also be clean and should be especially appealing to women. Recruiting of women employees will be started at once.

Warren Flier Completes His 50th Mission

Lt. John Bleech is Awarded Air Medal With Oak Leaf Clusters

HAS NARROW ESCAPES

A special dispatch from an advanced North African base, passed by the field censor for publication in the Times-Mirror, announces that Lt. John Bleech, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bleech, 211 Leont street, has completed his 50th mission as pilot of a medium bomber in Major General Doolittle's strategic air force.

Among these 50 missions were sea sweeps and raids on enemy landing grounds and transportation facilities. For the effective part he played in driving the Axis out of Tunisia, through Sicily and into Italy, Lt. Bleech has been awarded the Air Medal with eight Oak Leaf Clusters.

"One of the most dangerous missions, I was on, was a sea sweep," said Lt. Bleech. "We sighted a convoy of troopships and merchant vessels with a destroyer escort. Our plan was to divide the formation when we sighted a target, part to precision bomb from high altitude and part to skip bomb after the high element had (Turn to Page Two)

Break in Cold Snap Forecasted Today

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19.—(P)—The weather forecaster promises warmer weather today would break the first real cold snap of the season which settled over western Pennsylvania during the weekend.

A cold rain punctuated by occasional snow flurries and high winds prevailed yesterday and last night. A storm blew down trees in Erie and a one to two inch blanket of snow was reported in several communities in Erie, Crawford and Venango counties. Kane reported a snowfall with low temperatures, although its first snow came on Sept. 25. Two airplane crashes occurred

SECOND FRONT VITAL TOPIC AT MOSCOW

Secretary of State Hull Plunges Into Conference With Anthony Eden and Molotov

MEETING AT KREMLIN

BY EDDY GILMORE
Moscow, Oct. 19.—(P)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, highest United States official ever to visit Moscow, plunged quickly today into the war's first full dress tripartite conference, meeting with his British and Russian counterparts, Anthony Eden and Vyacheslav Molotov, only a few hours after concluding his 14,000-mile flight to the Russian capital.

As the foreign secretaries settled down to the first day's business, the Soviet press turned the spotlight on the long awaited get-together, at which the Russians consider a "second front" in western Europe an important topic. Despite their long, hard trip, Hull and Eden were eager to begin the discussions with Molotov. Both the American and British foreign officials expect the conference to lay the groundwork for future conversations among United Nations leaders.

Moscowites stood in long lines to purchase newspapers, all of which splashed pictures of Hull, Eden and Molotov at the airport clear across the bottom of the front pages.

The Moscow press front-paged the statements made by Hull and Eden upon their arrival, but the newspapers did not comment editorially on the conference.

The U. S. Secretary of State, who made his first airplane trip to get here arose early and ate his favorite breakfast of American rolled oats. It took considerable effort to locate the rolled oats, an American supply mission furnished six boxes to solve the problem.

Preliminary discussions were held at the Kremlin last evening shortly after the arrival of the American and British visitors at the Moscow airfield.

While the subjects which will be discussed here are a matter of speculation, it was recalled that (Turn to Page Two)

1,180 Parolees In Armed Services

Harrisburg, Oct. 19.—(P)—The Pennsylvania parole board has released 1,180 persons from its supervision to permit their induction into the armed forces.

Chairman Henry E. Hill disclosed today that "every possible cooperation" is being given to aid induction of both those on parole and inmates of institutions selected for military duty through selective service.

"When local boards desire to induct a man we waive supervision," said Hill. "Of course, those in institutions suitable for induction must be eligible for parole to be released."

Prison draft board panels determine eligibility of inmates for service and those qualifying are freed on condition they go directly into the armed forces. The men must have completed minimum sentences, however, since that is a statutory requirement for parole.

Kickoff Meeting of United War Fund Drive Enthusiastic

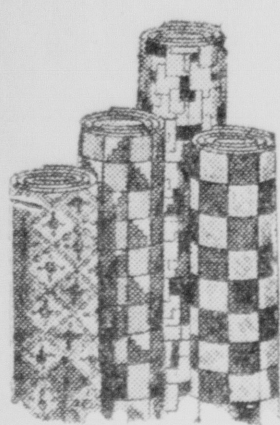

"We must put our faith in our boys, they, in turn, must know that we are behind them," said Bishop E. P. Wroth of Erie, homecoming to his own Warren county, keynote the kickoff meeting of the Warren County United War Fund Campaign for $88,700, the largest goal in more than a quarter of a century. Nearly 300 workers, including a very large contingent from the county outside of Warren borough, applauded the remarks of Bishop Wroth, Chairman E. W. Johnson, and other speakers. In the opinion of oldtime "campaigners," it was one of the most enthusiastic opening assemblies in the history of Warren drives.

The rafters of the Y. W. C. A. banquet hall were ringing with martial music long before the meeting itself officially opened, as workers arrived in small groups of threes and fours or in larger contingents of a dozen or more. County delegates, some of them obliged to drive twenty or thirty miles, were among the most faithful in their attendance. The High School Band, under the skilled direction of Harry A. Summers, provided a colorful sendoff and reminded everyone, even before a word was said, that the job on hand was a wartime job, a patriotic job.

Three Hundred Women Sought For Warren Industries Within 30 Days

H. J. Onions, of the DeLuxe, stated this morning that he will need many women within a short time. All of this adds up to the fact that unless women respond and do so quickly Warren's war effort will suffer.

One of the facts in the drive for women workers looms large and that is the need of a nursery where children may be left while women are at work. This has heretofore not loomed large in the picture but from all indications such a need will be felt soon and some steps must be taken to cope with the problem.

Warren today has 350 women employed at Corry, close to 100 in Buffalo and many in Jamestown. It is expected that many of these will return to Warren as the cost of living away from home, board, room, cartage, etc., is a big item in the living costs in other places.

The problem is a distinctive one for Warren at the present time and must be met.

dropped their bombs. I was in the low element and we circled the convoy just inches above the water.

"All the flak was concentrated on our element and it sure was hot. As the last bombs fell from the high element we turned on our bomb run trying to dodge flak bursts and water spouts, heading for the lead position of the convoy."

"We dropped our bombs on a vessel laden with troops and had to pull up to clear the ship, then down to skim the water again and make as poor a target of ourselves as possible. The tail gunners were treated to a beautiful sight because most of our bombs hit home."

"A destroyer must have been hit in the powder magazine because it blew up and sank instantly, while other ships were severely damaged. We got out of there in a hurry, but I know some of the other ships sank after we left. Several of our planes were damaged badly, but we all made it back except one which was hit directly while on a bomb run."

On the take-off for a mission shortly before he completed his 50th mission Lt. Blech's plane was caught by a heavy gust of wind and thrown into the slipstream, nosing up, diving, and slipping, but he maintained control of it and, despite being only a few feet off the ground, brought it to level flight.

Lt. Blech entered the army in July, 1941, and started his combat training in January, 1942, at Gunter Field, Alabama, and Columbus, Mississippi. He received his commission September 6, 1942. Prior to his enlistment he attended Edinboro Teachers' College in Pennsylvania.

The Communist party organ Pravda declared last week that the Russians intend to use the meeting to broach the issue of a "second front," by which they mean the opening of an Allied offensive across the English channel and the North Sea, an operation which they have repeatedly urged the western Allies to undertake.

It is not Russia's intention at this time, Pravda added, to discuss post-war frontiers or the status of the Baltic states "any more than the borders of the United States or the status of California."

BULLITT AND SAMUEL ON SAME PLATFORM

Philadelphia, Oct. 19—(AP)—William C. Bullitt, Democratic candidate for mayor of Philadelphia, and the rest of his ticket were pledged today to a platform calling for a "minimum working week of 40 hours in city hall," abolition of the municipal wage tax, renewal of a fight for revision of the city charter, and modernization of the water and sewer systems.

Bullitt and his Republican opponent, acting Mayor Bernard Samuel, spoke from the same platform before the Citizens Council on City Planning yesterday, and agreed that the city should accept federal aid in carrying out a public works improvement program.

However, Samuel said no "concrete plan" for federal aid has been developed as yet and "we are going ahead on our own resources without waiting for planning aid from Washington."

GOV. MARTIN LOSES BET ON LOAN DRIVE

Harrisburg, Oct. 19—(AP)—Governor Martin today started looking around for 20 bushels of apples to pay off a debt with Governor Griswold of Nebraska on the outcome of the Third War Loan Drive. Conceding defeat on the basis of reports that Pennsylvania subscribed 112 per cent of its quota while Nebraska's total was 115 per cent, the governor declared:

"We'll send him the apples. We can get them up in Centre county or down in Adams county. I am sorry we can't send good quality as usual, but the apples aren't as good this year."

Governor Griswold bet a hog that Nebraska would win.

Rabbit Show Proved Success Showing Interest in Breeding

In spite of the abrupt wintry trend in the weather, there were a large number of entries and a good attendance at the first Domestic Rabbit Show sponsored by the Warren County Domestic Rabbit Association.

The fact that this show was so successful in view of weather conditions gives definite proof of the deep interest which lies in the advancement of the rabbit industry in this locality.

F. A. Lind was judge of the show. Judge Lind's background of years of experience in the industry gives him a thorough knowledge of the individual merits of the various specimens.

Second places were awarded to Fitzgerald's Rabbitry, Junior New Zealand White Buck; R. C. Bull, Junior New Zealand White Doe; R. C. Bull, New Zealand White 6-8 Doe; R. F. Crippen, New Zealand White 6-8 Buck; Glenn H. Patch, New Zealand White Senior Buck; W. V. Johnson, New Zealand White Senior Doe.

Coming in for close places were entries from the following: R. F. Crippen, New Zealand White Senior White Doe; Fitzgerald's Rabbitry, New Zealand White Senior Buck; R. C. Bull, New Zealand White 6-8 Buck; Russell Luther, New Zealand White 6-8 Doe; Fitzgerald's Rabbitry, New Zealand White Junior Buck; R. C.

Bull, New Zealand White Junior Doe.

By continuously striving to raise the standards of the Domestic Rabbit association is out to make a name for itself, and while doing so, it is lending a big hand during this critical period in relieving today's meat shortage. With the official launching of the lion upon a career which shows prospects of being of real credit to the industry at large, the emphasis is on "Bigger and Better Bunnies!"

REALLY FINDING OUT

Residents of this section are really finding out that the government regulation of newspapers means business. Newsdealers of the city and the Warren News Company have been notified that Buffalo Sunday papers are out for the duration. The regulation of newsprint has caused the Sunday papers to be discontinued in this section until the war ends. The regulation is also affecting the New York and other Sunday papers. The order causes the Sunday papers to discontinue circulating except in their own trade territory. It may even come to a regulation that Warren will receive before long only Pittsburgh and Erie Sunday papers. And the newspapers have been notified that another cut in their newsprint supply will come soon.

INTERNATIONAL AIR ROUTES

Some weeks ago, in a light moment, we wrote about the flood of applications for permissions to establish new air lines, and suggested that all one needed was a pencil, some paper and a stamp.

There have been no repercussions. Nobody has taken us to task. This is neither retraction nor apology. But it does seem worth while to note that behind a rather ludicrous flood of irresponsible applications is a good backlog of sound projects sponsored by reputable concerns well capable of operating vast networks of airlines.

Nobody knows just what Pan-American, pioneer and leader in transoceanic flying, has in mind. Its thinking is said to be along the line of joint super-combine which, in the words of the authoritative trade magazine American Aviation, "would give the United States a single-company front to face the world in global air traffic after the war."

Meanwhile, however, a number of demonstrably successful domestic operators want to branch out. One of the most ambitious is Transcontinental and Western, a domestic transcontinental pioneer, which would like to expand across both Atlantic and Pacific.

Its projects would link New York, Chicago, Boston, Detroit and Washington with London and Paris, and would tie Los Angeles in with Honolulu. Since the line now operates between New York and Los Angeles, this would give it coverage from Paris to Honolulu.

If TWA were permitted to establish such routes, we should have at least three big American international air systems—Pan-American (and Panagra, which it shares with Grace), American Export, and TWA.

The TWA application is worthy of serious consideration, while the company's commercial public utility service has been entirely domestic for 18 months it has been operating over-ocean for the Air Transport Command.

It will be a long time, probably, before the Civil Aeronautics Board even tentatively decides on any specific application unless it has a war angle. But informally, on the basis of suggestions which it has invited, the Board already is considering the fundamental approach through which the claims of particular applicants will be judged.

MERCHANT MARINERS

During the next year a minimum of 35,000 additional experienced officers and seamen must be found to man the American merchant marine, if we are to maintain our record of meeting every invasion need, the War Shipping Administration says.

In the past year the personnel has been increased from 70,000 to 115,000 men. By a year from now we must have at least 175,000 seamen. About half of the 60,000 that are needed can be trained. The result must be pulled from less important shore jobs to which they have "retired" from the sea.

Don't let anybody tell you that the shipping crisis has been licked. It's down, but it isn't yet out.

MORE HASTE, MORE SPEED

Thursday the young man was in North Africa yearning to be home after months in Africa, Sicily and Italy. Sunday night he slept in his own bed in a New York suburb, after submitting to newspaper interviews and dining with his family. He was delayed somewhat by headwinds.

That was no stunt. The trip could have been made faster, if there had been urgent reason. It involved only ordinary routine transatlantic flying.

Can you remember when it was a day's job to hitch up the old mare, drive five or six miles to town, do the week's shopping and drive back home?

VITAMIN A—THE EASY WAY

Carrots, carrots everywhere—there are 50,000 cases of topped carrots waiting to be consumed. Fifty thousand cases is 735 tons, or 49 carloads, or enough for almost everyone to fill out a meal or two. This bountiful supply has resulted from a push by the Department of Agriculture to get growers to produce this easily-grown crop. You can buy them in larger quantity than usual and store them at home easily. There is no space allocated for their storage, and they may go to waste unless they are moved out of the markets quickly.

The potato crop is also rising to new and dizzy height, with every crop report.

Summer's passing means we have gotten rid of a lot of blood relations—mosquitoes.

If you've been working crossword puzzles, maybe War Ration Book 4 won't be so tough.

The Most Important Question to Be Settled

MOSCOW CONFERENCE

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Over at Agriculture, they are readying a national campaign to make the soybean a staple article in the U.S. diet.

The reason is that like peanuts (which also are being pushed) soybeans are full of fats and vitamins and agricultural experts have no doubt that eventually they will become one of America's important food products. The object of the coming campaign is to make soybeans just that now while they are a valuable substitute for foods that are short.

Every possible use of soybeans will be propagandized but emphasis will be laid on their value as "meat extenders" in meat loaf and sausage and in soups and stews.

BEHIND this campaign is a story. The dislocations and shortages in food products are resulting in a change in the American diet and not all of it for the better.

It should be stressed now that there is no question of maintaining the nutritive level. The problem is to direct this change in diet into healthful channels.

For example, the butter shortage which is likely to get worse has resulted in a marked decrease in the consumption of bread. Considering that serious, since bread still is the staff of life, Agriculture department experts prevailed upon OPA to lower the point value of margarine as butter. point values were upped. But the consumption of bread continued to curve down.

The food experts are trying other means to increase consumption. The production of sandwich spreads, peanut butter, jams and jellies is being stepped up.

Similar is the fact that whole milk shortages in some sections have caused a considerable decline in the consumption of cereals.

HERE is a quick survey of the food outlook as agriculture officials see it. Meat, pork, beef and veal will be more plentiful for some months but if the war drags on another year, feed shortages may cut the meat supply below any levels experienced so far. The supply of fresh, frozen, and canned fish is only about two-thirds of peace time. Poultry and eggs are at record production and consumption levels.

Fresh vegetables have been plentiful, but only those housewives who canned their Victory gardens will be able to load the tables with canned vegetables this winter. There will be plenty of potatoes.

As a result of these forced changes in eating habits, food experts predict some marked post-war changes in the American diet. The ration has had its introduction to quick-frozen and dehydrated foods and apparently likes them. The same will be true of soybeans, say the experts, once the nation as a whole is made aware of their nutritional value.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Two frightened people, and with cause, are Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray. They are doing a job they've never done before, and how they come out of it depends on you, and you, and you there, in the 18th row center.

They started a new movie together the other day. They started it in a set representing the hall and stairway of a moneyed, if decorative, polyglot, home somewhere in Los Angeles's fashionable Los Feliz section.

This section is or has been the abode of numerous screen notables, including Alan Ladd, Estelle Taylor, Cecil B. DeMille and Lily Pons, but the home in question came out of the fiction of James M. Cain, the super-realist who wrote "The Postman Always Rings Twice" and has been peddling the keys of punchy realism ever since.

DOWN in the hall stood MacMurray, a bright young insurance salesman. Up on the balcony, its railing draped with a gaudy Spanish shawl, stood Barbara Stanwyck, for this picture a sleek blonde, clad in nothing more than a wrap-around of Turkish towel. A studio censor had just approved the costume, on the reasonable grounds that the girl had just come from a sun bath rather than one of the sun variety, and obviously had a sun-suit under the towel. Boy meets Girl—in the Cain manner.

Landlords in rent control areas who fail to file with the Area Rent Director a registration statement within 30 days after renting a housing accommodation not previously registered will be subject to a refund to the tenant of any rent charged in excess of the maximum which OPA sets, Frank S. Anderson, Erie county rent director, announced today.

Safety officials out today with a warning to all drivers of cars and trucks to prepare for safe winter driving, make certain that windshield wipers are working and that cars carry tire chain equipment. The traffic accident death rate in the snow belt throughout the northern states last year was 24 per cent higher than that for summer driving.

Unique reunions of brothers, boys from the same home town which have been reported from far corners of the earth, today were dimmed by the fates that have tossed four Kane young men into the same German internment camp—Stalag Luft No. 3.

LET'S ALL PULL TOGETHER

Our men on the battle fronts are willing to die for freedom. We on the home front should be willing to pay for it.

Three Waves to be in Warren Seeking Recruits Wednesday

Three Waves will arrive in Warren tomorrow to provide information for women in this area concerning the opportunities for women in the largest Navy in the nation's history. Wave headquarters will be at the West Penn Oil Co., where interviews will be conducted tomorrow from two until nine p. m. They are Ensign Wanda McLaughlin, Yeoman Ember Heyne and Pharmacist's mate Virginia Hanson, all recruiting specialists.

Ensign McLaughlin, in a communication to the Times-Mirror points out that American women traditionally shared dangers as well as privileges.

"In times of crisis, men and women have always stood shoulder to shoulder," she said, "In Revolutionary days, women loaded the old powder muskets in smoke-filled log forts. When Indian arrows or enemy bullets found their mark, they tore strips from their petticoats to bind wounds. They knew how to mold bullets at the family hearth, and when lead for shot ran low, they melted down their cherished pewter household articles. They served as they could.

"In the new and ruthless warfare of the 1940's, women face hardships, trials, and challenges with the courage they showed in those trying days. The women of today are no less brave than our pioneer women, and now, new fields of activity are open to them. They have an unprecedented opportunity to serve. One of these opportunities is with the Navy which enlists and trains women to perform vital technical, administrative and clerical duties.

"There is a need for filling 50,000 billets in the Navy, every one a post of responsibility requiring a trustworthy Wave who places service to her country ahead of everything else."

All eligible young women in Warren and adjacent communities are urged to call at the West Penn Oil Co., between the hours of 2:00 and 9:00 p. m. to obtain further information about the Waves.

Ensign Wanda McLaughlin, a native of the West, was born in

YOUNGVILLE NEWS

Youngville, Oct. 18—The Methodist Men's Brotherhood elected officers for the coming year at their meeting Thursday night at the church. Robert Albright was elected president, William Clark, vice president, and Wallace Lake, secretary and treasurer.

After a business meeting at which plans were discussed to paint the church dining room and men's class room on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week, pictures were shown. These were moving travel pictures taken in Africa and Asia Minor. They were specially interesting as many of these places are currently mentioned in war news. Refreshments were served by the men of the October committee. The same evening the Dorcas class of the ICELAND—This U. S. Army Signal Corps photograph shows gasoline drums being rolled ashore for distribution to supply depots all over Iceland.

SOUTH PACIFIC—"What It Takes" is the U. S. Navy's caption for this official photograph showing high octane gasoline arriving at a South Pacific base.

"What it takes"

ON EVERY battle front, the finest fighting men in history are hewing out tomorrow's Victory. The home front's biggest job is to keep the supply streams rolling to these fighters.

Above, at the right, is "precious cargo" (the Navy's phrase) coming ashore on a South Pacific island. It is the high octane gasoline that sends bombers soaring out to blast the Japs.

Oil drove the ships that carried this cargo from the United States. Gasoline drove the Navy barges that brought it in through reefs and shallows. Supplies for the toiling men arrive in the same way.

All this goes on continuously around the world. America has a big advantage over the Axis in petroleum quality and quantity. It gives United Nations' fighting men one of their margins for Victory.

That superiority was developed under a competitive business system which has made America strong. Oil companies, operating as a part of this system, constantly found new ways to provide better products and finer service at lower prices.

In the Victory World of tomorrow, you can expect this same competitive business system to bring you even better service than you knew before.

G-GIRL

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW

Chapter I

IT was a stifling day. The heat stretched over the city thick and motionless as an asbestos curtain. It pressed down on government clerks hurrying back to their buildings from lunch. It blasted the faces of the bustling men with brief-cases as the swinging doors of the capital's air-cooled hotels deposited them on the scorched sidewalk.

But inside Temporary Building U, overlooking Pennsylvania Avenue and the Department of Commerce, Sally Thayer, two days removed from River Edge, Michigan, was oblivious of the steaming weather. A four-page questionnaire, covered with questions in small type, lay spread out in front of her. Sally had now reached the bottom of page four.

She gave the questionnaire a final look, hoping she hadn't made any mistakes then crossed the room to the receptionist's desk.

The receptionist looked quickly at the questionnaire and then said, "I'll have you see Mr. Chase when he is free. He takes care of all the stenographic help. Will you sit down?"

Sally found a chair at the end of a long row of men and women all clutching questionnaires. She tried to look composed, but actually she was so excited she was wondering how she could ever talk coherently to Mr. Chase.

SUPPOSE she didn't get a job? Mr. Chase might think she hadn't experience enough to handle vital war correspondence. But I've got to get a job, any kind of a job, Sally thought desperately. After the send-off River Edge gave me and the way Mother and Dad carried on, I'd never dare show my face there again till I'd been a success.

The crisp tones of the receptionist cut like a knife through Sally's reveries. "Miss Thayer, see Mr. Chase in Room 1143 at the end of the hall." Sally's dream burst like an overcharged balloon in the sizzling room.

Out the door and down the hall past rows of open office doors. Her feet beat a fast tattoo on the hard linoleum floor. Please, please, she prayed silently, just here, any job, but I want to work here in Washington so badly.

Here it was, Room 1143. Personnel Placement and Management. The sign hung above double doors which stood wide open. Sally hesitated a second, then walked expectantly through to the room beyond.

Sally started down the narrow aisle, wondering how she could ever find Mr. Chase. Then she noticed crudely painted signs which hung on the pillars that divided the room into sections. 1137, 1139, 1141 read the numbers. Evidently these sections with no partitions between them were called "rooms." She stopped at the desk nearest the pillar marked 1143.

"Mr. Chase?" she asked the girl at the desk. The girl never looked up.

"Three desks back of me."

SALLY maneuvered her way toward Mr. Chase, and stopped by his desk. He was on the telephone. He waved his hand at a chair by the desk.

"What do you think I am—God?" he inquired of the telephone. "How can I possibly find 25 stenographers by Tuesday? I can't even find one for myself. Give me plenty of dollar-a-year men, but stenographers, no. They're going out of Washington instead of in. Must be the publicity we're getting."

He banged the phone down, and turned to Sally. "Now what can I do for you?"

Sally handed him the questionnaire she had filled out in the inner office. "I wanted to see you about a position."

Mr. Chase turned the pages quickly. "All the way from Michigan. You'll probably stay two weeks, have hysterics one day, and go back home in a hurry. That's the way they come... and go."

Sally controlled an impulse to have the hysterics then and there. "No, Mr. Chase. If I can get a job, I want to stay here—and work hard—and—help win the war." She felt she was babbling like a child.

He looked across the desk at the bright-faced girl who was watching him so intently.

Steady gray eyes, a gay mouth now rigidly controlled, dark, fluffy hair framing an oval face. More than her attractiveness, Mr. Chase noted the look of spirit, of challenge about her.

He smiled suddenly, remembering the days when he too wanted to set the world on fire. "Miss Thayer, you're the first person in the last hundred I've heard say that whom I believe. I think you will work hard. But it's my private hunch you'll leave Washington a different girl from the one you are today. You're going to work in a pretty tough town. A Family of Infidels Converted

SAM JONES

A minister once told me that he was holding a love feast one Sunday morning. One man got up and told how he was a nurse in the lap of religion, cradled in piety, and brought up in the fear of God. By and by another young man, who had just been licensed to preach, got up and said: "I'm sorry I have not had the experience of some who have spoken. I will tell you what Christ did for me."

"My father and mother were infidels, and so were my nine brothers and sisters. Two years ago I went to a camp meeting. I went by myself, merely to have some fun. I was standing up by a post when all at once the preacher's words began to burn their way into my heart and I found myself transfixed to that post."

"When the man of God finished preaching he invited penitents to come forward, and the first thing I knew I was on my knees begging for mercy. They encouraged me and helped me. When the meeting was over, and all were leaving the tent, they said, 'We will pray with you outside in the woods.'"

"I looked up and said, 'I didn't know till an hour ago that there is a God in Heaven, and a fearful ruin for sinners in the world to come. I will never leave this spot until I make peace with God and get Him to forgive me, and walk out a child of God and an heir of eternal life.'"

"The sunlight was pouring into my face. I turned my eyes inward and the fact flashed on me. 'Your father will despise you, your mother will laugh at you, and your brothers and sisters will drive you from home.' 'I am going to stick to God and religion,' I said. 'If everybody on earth forsakes me, I am going to stand firm.'"

"Just before I got home I turned into the woods at the roadside and knelt down and prayed God to help me. 'I know I am going into a den of lions; Lord, help me to be faithful.'"

"I got on my horse and rode home, went to supper, and nobody spoke a word to me. I was happy but spoke not a word."

"About a week after that, my eldest brother and myself were sitting on a log, talking. We had been splitting rails and were tired, and had sat down to rest. I said to him: 'Brother Tom, do you know I got saved down at the camp meeting? I looked at him, and the great tears were running down his face. He said, 'We have all noticed the change in you. Mother says you look and talk just like an angel. You don't swear and you don't drink or do anything wrong. Do you reckon the preacher could do the same for me?' 'I will go with you to the meeting and God will bless you,' said I."

"My brother Tom got gloriously converted. I said to him, 'Brother, we are going to put the candles in the candlestick now and light up that infidel home of ours. Let us be faithful.'"

Indication of Splendid Season Seen In First Talented Players' Offering

Warren Players were most fortunate in their choice of "The Night of January 16th" for the opening production of a wartime season in which four public plays will be substituted for the usual schedule of studio meetings and patrons who saw the initial offering will want to take no chances of missing something good by staying away from the play yet to come.

However, Warren play-goers have learned through past experience that they seldom "take a chance" when going to a Players' presentation. The writer is not alone in a biased opinion that such local productions are always far above the average amateur performance. Out of towners have been unanimous in their commendation and expressions of wonder at the quantity and quality of talent found in the club's ranks.

"The Night of January 16th" was no exception to the rule of a winner every time and individual hits added up to an impressive score. In the leading roles were three of the club's best, Betty Field, Homer Fleming and Jack MacDonald, the latter doubling as director and carrying both parts with marked ability.

As was to be expected, the greater part of the audience interest and attention was focused on the witnesses, the spontaneous applause greeting their dismissal from the witness box attesting to really remarkable performance. Each in his own characterization contributed and built up the interest and suspense, Arthur Langdon as the county medical examiner; Mary Helen Johnson as the wife of the janitor; Dave Smith as the private "dick"; Nik Geraci as the "copper" on the beat; Anne Krantz as the sorrowing widow and George Cunningham as her less-sorrowing father; Fern Mostert as the Swedish housekeeper with definite ideas about sin; Joan Hoyer as the handwriting expert who could be wrong; Nel-

SIoux FALLS, GERMANY

Here's a sample of what we didn't get because our fighting allies did!

THEY took it...in London and Lidice. In Warsaw, Prague, Paris, everywhere the swastika cast its evil shadow.

We didn't get it here in Sioux Falls. You don't see the flag with the crooked cross over our City Hall.

Well, let's not get smug about it. One of the biggest reasons is that our fighting allies were keeping it away from us while we were getting ready.

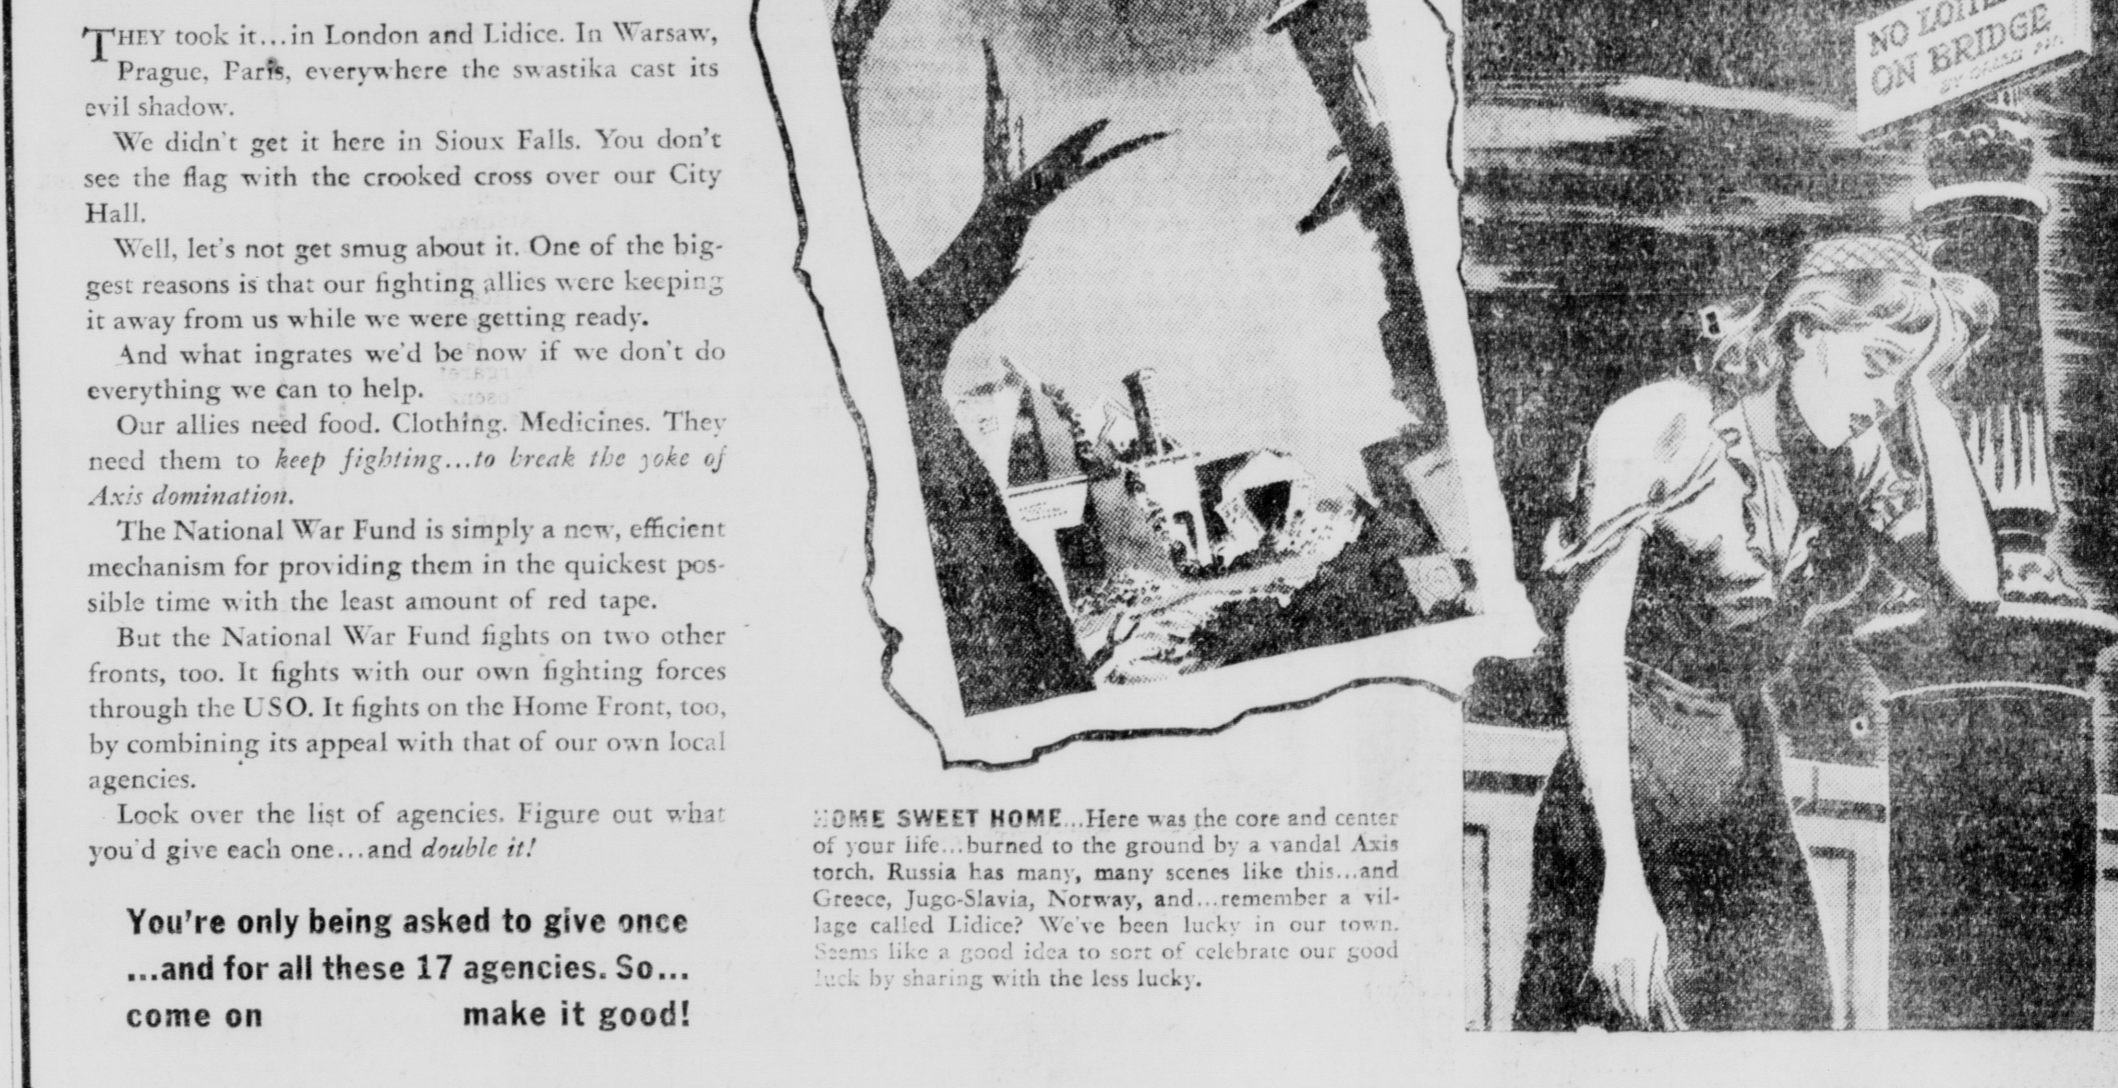

And what intrigues we'd be now if we don't do everything we can to help.

Our allies need food. Clothing. Medicines. They need them to keep fighting...to break the yoke of Axis domination.

The National War Fund is simply a new, efficient mechanism for providing them in the quickest possible time with the least amount of red tape.

Look over the list of agencies. Figure out what you'd give each one...and double it!

HOME SWEET HOME...Here was the core and center of your life...burned to the ground by a vandal Axis torch. Russia has many, many scenes like this...and Greece, Jugo-Slavia, Norway, and...remember a village called Lidice? We've been lucky in our town. Seems like a good idea to sort of celebrate our good luck by sharing with the less lucky.

RECENT "GUEST" AT AN "AXIS CLUB." Nazis and Japs have a fine custom in common. Pretty girls in a conquered area are placed in "officers' clubs." It didn't happen here!

You're only being asked to give once...and for all these 17 agencies. So...come on make it good!

G-GIRL

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW

YESTERDAY: After being apprehensive over her chances of landing a job in Washington, Sally Thayer is placed as a secretary at $1600 a year. She is overjoyed, despite the pessimistic warnings of Mr. Chase, the personnel director, and can hardly wait until morning to start work.

IT WAS eleven o'clock that next morning before Sally actually discovered where she was going to work. She had spent the previous hours filling out three copies of her original application, having them notarized, being fingerprinted, signing a buy bonds pledge, making out a hospitalization application, listening to a black-haired man rattle off a speech on the importance of the division she was to work in, and collecting an armful of literature on what to do in Washington in her spare time.

All the articles Sally had read on life in Washington hadn't prepared her for the complexity of starting a job. I wonder if it takes as long to get fired as it does to get hired, she thought as she waited for the third assistant in personnel placement and management to escort her personally to the room where she was to work. Personally—because the War Commission wanted its employees to feel immediately at home.

I certainly feel anything but at home, Sally thought dazedly. She had covered miles of corridors in the wake of one after another of the exuberant personnel staff. Though all concerned called her "Miss Thayer" cordially, she felt more anonymous than an elephant at a circus. In fact, the whole business of becoming a G-Girl reminded Sally of a circus. Somebody must have figured out the procedure when he was sleeping, Sally decided.

Finally she reached her desk. It was at the end of a long line of desks in a huge room swarming with humanity. "Temporarily you're sitting in the allocations division," the personnel woman explained, "because Miss Lyons—she's the secretary you're to assist—doesn't have an extra desk near her. But before long we'll get you settled in the right place. Actually, we're lucky to have a desk for you at all. Here's Miss Lyons now. I'll leave you in her hands."

MISS LYONS was a thin blond girl with an exaggerated pompadour. "I'm certainly glad to know you're going to help me," she greeted Sally. "Till we get together I'll just send some typing down to you. You can type, can't you?"

Sally said in a surprised voice, "Of course." How could she have been hired as a stenographer if she couldn't type?

"When it comes lunch time suppose you take the 1:30 shift," Miss Lyons continued. "I eat at 12:30 and you can sit at my desk while I'm gone. Not that you'll know anything, but you'll look official. Did you get your vaccination this morning?"

Sally shook her head. Miss Lyons went on, "We're all supposed to. The Patriotic War Commission employees must set an example to the other agencies, so we're the goats. Why don't you go down now and get it over with? I haven't any jobs, this minute. You go to the basement health room on G corridor."

"I suppose I might as well," Sally agreed doubtfully. Getting vaccinated was just about the last thing she wanted to do that minute after the confused morning she'd had. "See you later," Miss Lyons said cheerfully.

She was the only victim in the health room. After battling with the frenzied mob in the elevator, Sally had decided everyone in the building was lunching simultaneously today. It was peaceful in the bare white room. Through a half-door, she could see a tall thin-faced man taking off a white coat. As she stood uncertainly in the room, he half turned and caught sight of her. He groaned and pulled the coat on again. "Just when I thought I was through," he muttered. "Come on in, sister. What are you waiting for?"

SALLY flushed and pushed the door open. "Roll up your left sleeve," the man commanded. Sally saw he held the needle all ready in his hand. It looked as long as a dagger as it glistened in the sunlight. Sally shivered.

"I suppose you're going to faint," the voice was weary. The needle scratched her arm abruptly.

Sally's dizziness disappeared. She retorted angrily, "I am not." Then, feeling the need to justify her reaction to the needle, "It's just that I had to get up pretty early to get to work, and I skipped breakfast."

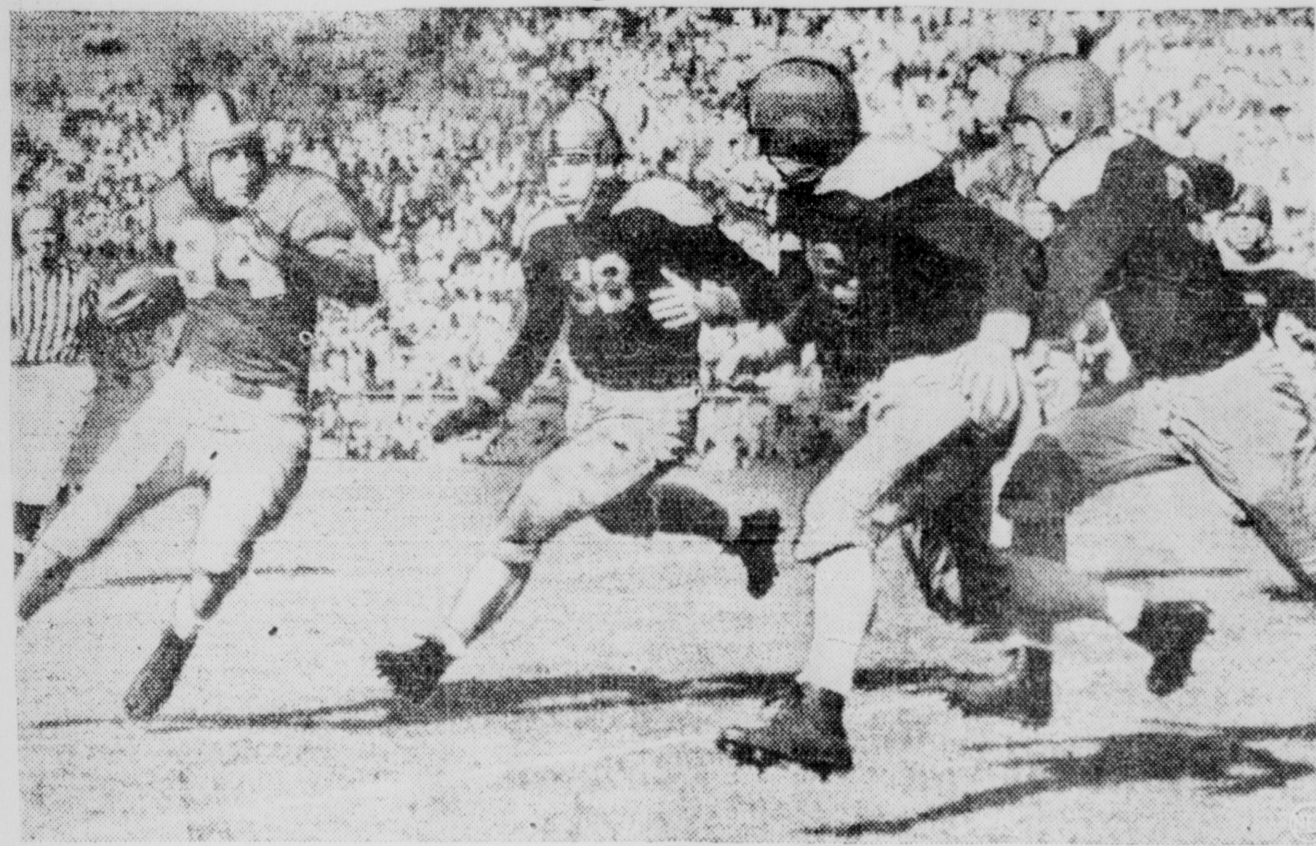

The doctor's lips twisted in an ironical smile. "Lady, it just so happened that I haven't been to bed at all. I spent a pleasant night removing two beautifully overgrown appendices, delivering a set of twins, and binding up an artistic knife case."

Sally forgot her arm. "But why?"

"Haven't you heard? There's a war on. And there are a lot of

Dragons Face Mighty Owls in Last Home Game

Running Into Trouble

Typical of opposition opponents of College of Pacific encounter is this picture showing California's Jodi Garthwaite about to be swarmed under by Amos Alonzo Stagg's boys, first of whom are Earl Klapstein, 38, and John Verutti, 26. Close inspection reveals fourth COP man behind Verutti with nary a blocker in sight. COP remained unbeaten, 12-6.

SATURDAY'S TILT FEATURE ATTRACTION

Saturday afternoon at 2:30, Warren's Dragons clash with their ancient grid and basketball rivals, the mighty Bradford Owls of McKean county, in a battle that will either take the sting out of Warren's three defeats this year or add one more, depending entirely upon the will of the Blue and White.

Undoubtedly Bradford will present one of the oddest teams on record: a machine with plenty of gas, but lacking a sparkplug to give them that get-up-and-go. Then again, they're liable to turn into a wrecking crew that tears up everything but the stands and run wild against tough opposition.

The Owls on the other hand will probably be accompanied by a large array of home-towners and ready to throw everything, even the kitchen stove, into battle to try tying another on the Dragon tail, in like manner of last season. No doubt, Pflug will have a fast ground assault centered around trick reverse plays, with a fine scattering of aerial warfare to keep the locals on their toes.

Last season, the locals, slightly favored, as the boys with the chips voted it, trucked to Owltown and came running back with a 13 to 0 can tied on their tails by a smaller outfit. This season the locals, who haven't turned the tide since 1940, with 1941 a scoreless tie, mean to avenge that one and if they are wired up right to that sparkplug—Saturday will tell.

Montgomery Prepares For Tuneup Fight

happened to him a year ago when Maxie Shapiro caught him unprepared; and what happened to Beau Jack a month ago, when Bobby Ruffin gave him a smearing. Besides which, the lightweight champ has a healthy respect for Scalzo, the former featherweight titleholder who has won three straight as a lightweight.

"That Scalzo is a cutie," Montgomery, as he wound up a 10-round drill yesterday, "I've seen him go. He's fast and smart. He can hit some, too. But I'm going to catch up with him and I know I'll win."

about a knockout. But I'll say it again, that Scalzo is pretty cute."

Notre Dame and Army Again Picked as Two Best Football Teams in Third Weekly Poll

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Oct. 19.—(P)—Notre Dame remained at the top of the standings in the Associated Press, third weekly poll of the season—to the surprise of exactly no one—but College of the Pacific furnished the fireworks by zooming to sixth place.

Two weeks ago the men of Amos Alonzo Stagg weren't even among the also rans but by last week they had nudged into tenth place. Saturday's 16 to 7 triumph over the Del Monte Pre-Flights, however, brought the club four first place votes and a maulack full of secondary consideration.

But the Notre Dame eleven, which defeated Wisconsin by a 50 to 0 score for its fourth straight first place votes as it did of the scramble for the honor of leading the top ten.

Ninety-eight of the 114 voting experts deemed the Irish the best team in the country and none of the opposition placed them lower than third. The South Bend team gathered 1,075 points.

Army, a 52 to 0 winner over Columbia and Notre Dame's Nov. 6 foe, was easily the second choice with 926 points, each first place vote giving a team 10 points, nine for a second and so down to one point for a tenth place ballot.

Navy retained third place despite its narrow 14 to 6 win over Penn State but Purdue vaulted over Pennsylvania for fourth. The Boilermakers whipped Ohio State, last year's No. 1 team, 30 to 7, while the Quakers annihilated Lakehurst Naval, 74 to 6.

Texas, Colorado College, Northwestern and Camp Grant banged their way into the senon ten, displacing Great Lakes, Dartmouth, Washington and Georgia. The "Reserve" group is led by Minnesota and also includes the Memphis Naval Technicians, whose last two games have been cancelled.

Warren Transfer, 145, Rossell 149, Aurillo 146, Rich 143, Mack 148.

Public Health Day Program Well Attended

Despite conflicting activities of a community nature, the Public Health Day program presented in the high school last evening by the Warren County Medical Auxiliary was fairly well attended.

Mrs. William Ball presided and presented Dr. E. S. Briggs for a few remarks on the importance given food and its preparation many centuries ago.

She then introduced Miss Arlene Schnure, county home economics advisor, who announced the evening's theme, "Food for Your Family". She showed three moving pictures. The first, "Hidden Hunger", showed how bodies are malnourished if we do not properly balance meals from food in all seven groups known as The Basic Seven. The second was a short, "Eat to Work and Win", stressing the importance of proper diet in the war effort, each individual owing it to his country to eat well to keep well. The third picture, dealing with nutrition, was released by the home economics department at State College. It stressed importance of choosing our foods wisely and preparing them properly to avoid waste and loss of food value.

Miss Schnure showed how we must change our food habits if we wish to have plenty of food for our families. She emphasized that there is enough food for all if it is properly used. Three points given emphasis were: 1. Fight food waste. 2. Make necessary adjustments due to food shortage through use of substitutes. 3. Stretch rationed foods by using cereals instead of the meats and other articles ordinarily used.

In conclusion, she asked her audience to fight black markets, prevent hoarding, pay no more than ceiling prices and make no purchases without ration stamps.

Coupon Books For Farmers Are Delayed

Some farmers and other non-highway users of gasoline have experienced delay in receiving their gasoline coupon books after making application for renewal.

The local board wishes to announce that a new supply of books was ordered in plenty of time. However, the order has not been filled by the Distribution Center, though every effort is being made to secure a supply.

The District Office and every board in the district has been contacted in an appeal for supplies. There are no books in the district that can be secured.

The local board is anxious to make this explanation of an unfortunate situation that is thoroughly understood and is trying in every way to correct. When new books are received, rations will be mailed out immediately.

Kickoff Meeting Of United War Fund Drive Enthusiastic

an opportunity to make a real sacrifice in the service of the country, the country, and humanity. "I count it a privilege to be associated with this great effort," Mr. Johnson said. "Every worker in whatever capacity should feel the same."

"Will they get here on time?" was the question in every mind; and finally merely, "Will they get here?" A special feature of the meeting had been arranged consisting of a program by four American aviators. But since these had to be brought here from State College, Pennsylvania, by automobile, there was much uncertainty as to whether they would actually get here in time to add their contribution to the program. Long before the factual details of the drive were out of the way, scores of eyes were turned toward the entrance, alert for the flash of uniforms.

They came finally, these four American boys who are serving their country in the Air Force. First Lieutenant James E. Cashon, in charge of the group, all of whom are from the 330th College Training Detachment (Aircrew) at State College, introduced them. He was followed by Aviation Student G. W. Stratton, formerly star of the Broadway hit "Best Foot Forward." Student Stratton then introduced the two veterans, Aviation Student C. C. Wilson and J. A. Travers. Each of the two aviators first explained the numerous decorations they wore. Both have served long in actual combat, Mr. Wilson in the South Pacific, Mr. Travers in the European theatre. The former's service ribbons show that he has participated in eight major engagements.

The aviators' program consisted of a Question-and-Answer session designed to bring out various highlights of their experience, with Mr. Stratton acting as interlocutor and the two veterans supplying the facts. Feature of Mr. Travers' experience was the sinking by his bomber of two enemy submarines. Mr. Wilson told of the Bismarck Sea action in which he participated, and conditions of life in the jungle. The importance of the U. S. O. which is the chief participant in the United War Fund, as well as the other sixteen national agencies, was stressed by both. At the conclusion of their program the Aviation Students departed immediately in order to get back to State College. So important is their training work that they are not permitted to miss a single class, no matter how vital the occasion.

The following points were emphasized in the final instructions to solicitors:

1. Fill out cards completely and accurately.
 2. Don't worry if you run into unavoidable duplications.
 3. A practical answer to the question, "How Much Shall I Give?" is: 10 Hours Work.
 4. Be sure to attend Report Meetings without fail.
 5. The success of the Campaign depends on the success of each solicitor with each individual card.
 6. Don't call on any prospect until you have called on yourself.
- Final word to the workers, as the meeting came to a close, was the stirring admonition: "THE CAMPAIGN IS IN YOUR HANDS."

OIL WORK IS WAR WORK

Oil production and oil refining are as important as any war jobs on the whole home front. Oil is absolutely vital to Victory. Without it bombers can't bomb, fighter planes can't fight, tanks can't go roaring through the enemy.

Imagine a plane crew, itching to fight, grounded for lack of oil. Think what our invading forces would suffer without planes overhead to protect them.

Get the true picture of oil in this war . . . and no other work will seem half so important even if—for the time being—it does pay more.

FIFTH ARMY SCORES SWEEPING VICTORY

Americans Capture Five Villages On The Eastern Sector

British Broops Between Capua and the Sea Sweep Over Difficult River Barrier at All Points on U. S.-Made Bridges

By WES GALLAGHER

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 19.—(P)—The battle of the Volturno river has ended in victory for the Fifth Army with the American and British troops crossing the river at all points, it was announced today.

American troops captured five villages on the eastern sector of the Fifth Army line in a sweeping advance of from three to five miles. Simultaneously British troops between Capua and the sea swept over

NAZIS RUSH RESERVES TO THE UKRAINE

Some of Bitterest Fighting Of Russian Campaign Rages Inside City of Melitopol

THOUSANDS ENGULFED

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—The Germans were reported rushing reinforcements from their Crimean manpower reservoir today in a desperate attempt to hold the south Ukraine strongholds of Melitopol in the face of Russian offensives from the east and north aimed at cracking that gateway to the Crimea and engulfing the hundreds of thousands of Nazi troops in the great peninsula.

Some of the bitterest fighting of the war was raging inside of Melitopol itself, the Russians said. Crack Russian divisions under Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky, having battered their way more than four miles deeper into the Dnieper river bend from captured Zaporizhe to flank Nazi armies in that salient, were pounding southward toward a probable juncture with Gen. Fedor Tolbukhin, leading the main drive against Melitopol from the east.

Russian troops "are throwing the enemy back, destroying his forces, and clearing him from one populated place after another," the Russian communiqué declared. Berlin said that more than 300,000 Red army troops were plunging south from Zaporizhe and acknowledged that Nazi forces were giving ground. Moscow said 23 towns were liberated, 4,000 Germans slain, scores of tanks and guns captured or destroyed and all enemy counter-attacks smashed and hurled back in this drive.

Fresh Russian gains were announced below Gomel. The Nazi White Russian base north of Kiev, where Soviet troops who had crossed the Dnieper in a new advance were striking toward Recha, 27 miles west of Gomel.

Pacific Toll By U. S. Subs Reaches 460

Washington, Oct. 19.—(P)—American submarines, carrying the war into home waters of Japan, have sunk or damaged 460 Japanese vessels since the war began, the navy announced in a communiqué today.

The figures, contained in a communiqué released by Secretary of the Navy Knox at a press conference, included 148 enemy transports, cargo ships, tankers and miscellaneous vessels not previously listed as struck by torpedoes in the war against Japanese shipping.

The navy's totals showed that 10 Japanese ships have been sent to the bottom, 36 probably have been sunk and 105 others damaged since December 7, 1941.

The new reports of sinkings and damaging of enemy craft included 98 ships sunk, 5 probably sunk and 45 damaged. Previous communiqués had listed 221 as sunk, 31 probably sunk and 60 as damaged.

WAGE DISPUTE RESULTING IN COAL FAMINE

Operators Disagree With Each Other on Contract Terms, as Union Men Refuse to Arbitrate

ICKES ISSUES APPEAL

Washington, Oct. 19.—(P)—Another coal crisis reared up today. Operators disagreed with each other on contract terms, union men in some mines stuck to their "no contract, no work" stand and home owners who use soft coal already are starting to feel the pinch of an incipient shortage.

Many of the elements which existed last spring—when there were three walkouts—were discernible as the V. A. Labor Board (WLB), the operators, and the United Mine Workers (UMW) sought terms acceptable all around.

The government dropped its control of the mines last week, with Interior Secretary Ickes expressing a wish that the owners and the workers could reach a contract so as to boost lagging production. Alabama miners promptly went on strike. Today they were returning slowly, at the request of UMW President John L. Lewis. But steel output in the section has been reduced.

Lewis, in appealing to the miners, said he believed the WLB would accept a proposed contract between Illinois miners and the Illinois Soft Coal Producers Association, raising wages approximately $1.75 a day. This contract was considered as a possible guide for the entire bituminous industry.

The Appalachian and Pennsylvania coal operators—the bulk of the producers—rejected the Illinois terms last night. They sent a telegram to WLB Chairman William H. Lavis, saying they would (Turn to Page Two)

Figures In Hex Slaying Seek Pardons

Harrisburg, Oct. 19.—(P)—The commutation plea of the last of three men sent to prison in 1929 for the York county "hex murder" of Nelson Reymeyer will be heard by the state pardons board at its October 27-28 sessions.

The plea will be made by John Blythe, who, with John Curry, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary, in a strange case involving a look of hair and a spell said to have been cast on the mother of one of the accused by hex, a colloquial word meaning witchcraft.

Curry was released in 1939, as was Wilbert Ness, who had been convicted of second degree murder and given a 10 to 20 year sentence.

Pardon board records show the trio went to Reymeyer's cabin to seek a look of hair which they thought would "break a spell" cast on Hess' mother, Curry was accused of hitting Reymeyer with a piece of kindling wood during a struggle and the others were charged with binding the man in a chair and setting the fire to his cabin.

The board also will hear applications of 19 others serving life imprisonment sentences for first degree murder.

"Cooked Food Centers" Plan Suggested For Communities

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19.—(P)—Establishment of a system of community "cooked food centers"—glorified delicatessen shops where women war workers could pick up the nucleus of the family's dinner on their way home from the shop—was suggested today by the president of the American Dietetic Association.

"If such centers were established," said Miss Frances Mackinnon, of St. Louis, in an interview at the opening of the association's war conference, "the woman war worker could pick up, say, a hot cooked stew and the fill in the bill-of-fare with a quickly-prepared salad—instead of going home and attempting to get a full meal on a 'short order' basis."

"Such short order cooking in the home, which is becoming increasingly prevalent because of the large numbers of women in industry, is not only trying on already-tired woman worker, but it is a drain on the family pocket book. Short order items, like chops, are expensive when used too regularly."

And she said that after-work shopping for such items as steaks and chops—even when available—is virtually out of the question for many women war workers because of shopping delays under wartime conditions.

Third War Loan Drive Topped Three Billion

Washington, Oct. 19.—(P)—The American people, asked to raise $15,000,000,000 for the Third War Loan Drive, hit that goal and then plunked down $3,943,000,000 more toward bombers, bullets and other bad news for the Axis.

The treasury announced the final tabulations last night for the record financing campaign. Of the nearly 19 million dollars $5,377,000,000 was subscribed by individuals.

First Military Exchange Of War Prisoners

More Than 5,000 Disabled Service Men of United Nations on Way Home

17 ARE AMERICANS

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—More than 5,000 disabled Allied servicemen, including 17 Americans, who were captured by the Germans on many battlefields and who spent months and even years in prisoner of war camps, are on their way home in the war's first military prisoner exchange with Germany.

The exchange for an undisclosed number of wounded Germans in Allied hands is taking place by way of Swedish and Spanish ports. The British foreign office announced that the Americans involved would be "sent back to their homes as soon as possible after they have reached this country" and have communicated with their families.

The foreign office said the repatriation was being carried out in three separate movements, with a transfer of Allied and German casualties at Gothenburg, Sweden, a similar exchange at Barcelona, Spain, and an embarkation of German prisoners, without an exchange, at an Allied port in north-west Africa.

(The war department in Washington said the 17 Americans included four officers and 13 enlisted men. Their names will be announced as soon as the next of kin have been notified.) (Turn to Page Two)

HITLER TALKS BUT TOPIC IS UNREVEALED

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—Adolf Hitler made a speech on Germany's political and military situation after a conference of "leading personalities of the state and party" called by Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command, the German news agency DNB announced tonight.

What the German fuhrer said was not disclosed.

U. S. Air Force Is Active In West Yunnan

Chungking, Oct. 19.—(P)—Fighter-bombers of the U. S. 14th air force, supporting Chinese ground forces in western Yunnan province, attacked Japanese troop concentrations and supply dumps at Lukou on the west bank of the Salween river Sunday and inflicted heavy casualties. Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

Other American planes bombed three undefended enemy auxiliary airfields in eastern China, the announcement said.

(A Chinese communiqué yesterday said the Japanese column which had driven into the Lukou area from Burma had been broken up and forced into scattered retreat.)

Although the Chinese said yesterday they had defeated and dispiritedly retreated because of the large numbers of women in industry, is not only trying on already-tired woman worker, but it is a drain on the family pocket book. Short order items, like chops, are expensive when used too regularly."

And she said that after-work shopping for such items as steaks and chops—even when available—is virtually out of the question for many women war workers because of shopping delays under wartime conditions.

Three Hundred Women Sought For Warren Industries Within the Next Thirty Days; Employment Office Arranges Interviews

Seven Plants in Borough Send Out Appeals For Additional Help

SITUATION IS URGENT

"We must have 300 women in Warren plants inside of the next 30 days. The women of the city must awaken to the fact that the need is great and that they must back up their husbands, sons and brothers by taking employment where it will back up the efforts the service men are making. I am in close touch with the local labor situation due to my connection with the Management and Labor Advisory Committee and I feel Warren is not yet awake to the situation," said George Craft this morning.

The statement was made in connection with the fact that 200 women must be recruited for seven essential war plants in Warren inside of the next thirty days. In fact many of them will be needed inside of the next 15 days. The dire need of the local plants for help is evidenced by the fact that Manager David Levine of the Manpower Commission has actual orders for 300 women now. Most of these will be at work by November 1st.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the work to be done is all light machine work, such as women can readily do, that no training is required and that the pay is equal to that given men for the same class of work. The War Labor Board has ruled that the stabilization of labor rules apply to women essentially the same as for men.

This evening at the Employment office an interviewer will meet women and interview them for places in one big local plant. This plant will put women to work beginning next Monday. Uniforms, etc., will be furnished for the women and this evening one of the uniforms will be on display at the Employment Office.

The campaign to enroll women from non-essential work into essential work is opening today and will be carried on until the required number is available. In the seven plants the employment of the 200 women will only be the first step and Mr. Levine stated this morning that inside of 60 days there will undoubtedly be 600 women given places in the various plants. The inroads of the draft on manpower in Warren county plants is being felt in no uncertain terms and women must replace the men.

And on top of the need for women right now there is every indication that another plant within the next few weeks will ask for 150 women and girls. Wives, sisters and sweethearts of men in the service are especially appealed to for enrollment in the lists to be given the local plants so that the flow of war supplies from Warren will not cease.

In this connection it is interesting to note that as yet the DeLuxe Metal Furniture Company has not placed its order for women with the Employment office. Manager (Turn to Page Two)

BULLETINS

London, Oct. 19.—(P)—Yugoslav patriot forces, having apparently routed German forces at a strategic railroad bridge over the Sava river near Senica, are mopping up all Slovenian territory between the river and the Austrian frontier, a Yugoslav National Army of Liberation communiqué said today.

Washington, Oct. 19.—(P)—Republican members of the tax-framing house ways and means committee took a solid stand today against any further federal taxes on individual or corporate incomes, in effect killing outright the administration's $10,500,000,000 new tax program.

Large Contract Secured By DeLuxe Metal Furniture Co.

H. J. Onions, of the DeLuxe Metal Furniture Company, announced today that the company has just closed a contract with the Curtiss-Wright Airplane Company for the manufacture of airplane parts. The Curtiss-Wright Company at the present is changing its plane model and is to build a better and speedier plane than the P-40, which has been one of the standard fighter planes of the American Air Force.

At the present time the DeLuxe is busy making tools for the American Aviation Company, but work on the installation of a lounge room, special toilets, etc., will be started in readiness to begin work on the new contract. This is due to the fact that women will be largely employed in the work on the plane parts. This promises to be excellent work for women, as aluminum will be used entirely in the work and it is light and much of the work will be drilling, etc., which will enable the women to perform the work with a minimum of effort. The work will also be clean and should be especially appealing to women. Recruiting of women employees will be started at once.

Tooling of the plant for the new work will be started at once and much special machinery will have to be installed. However, priorities on this can be secured due to the character of the work and its necessity in the war effort.

The Curtiss-Wright Company is one of the largest plane makers in the land and is turning out thousands of planes and in the future the Warren company will have a big part in the production.

The contract is the largest ever handled by the local company as it runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars and will keep the plant busy on multishifts for many months to come.

The effect of this big contract should be felt in the city in an impetus given to local business by the placing of many additional employees on the payroll of the DeLuxe Company.

"One of the most dangerous missions, I was on, was a sea sweep," said Lt. John Bleech. "We sighted a convoy of troopships and merchant vessels with a destroyer escort. Our plan was to divide the formation when we sighted a target, part to precision bomb from high altitude and part to skip bomb after the high element had (Turn to Page Two)

Break in Cold Snap Forecasted Today

Pittsburgh, Oct. 19.—(P)—The weather forecaster promises warmer weather today would break the first real cold snap of the season which settled over western Pennsylvania during the weekend.

A cold rain punctuated by occasional snow flurries and high winds prevailed yesterday and last night. A storm blew down trees in Erie and a one to two inch blanket of snow was reported in several communities in Erie, Crawford and Venango counties.

Kane reported a snowfall with low temperatures, although its first snow came on Sept. 25. Two airplane crashes occurred.

SECOND FRONT VITAL TOPIC AT MOSCOW

Secretary of State Hull Plunges Into Conference With Anthony Eden and Molotov

MEETING AT KREMLIN

BY EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Oct. 19.—(P)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, highest United States official ever to visit Moscow, plunged quickly today into the war's first full dress tripartite conference, meeting with his British and Russian counterparts, Anthony Eden and Vyacheslav Molotov, only a few hours after concluding his 14,000-mile flight to the Russian capital.

As the foreign secretaries settled down to the first day's business, the Soviet press turned the spotlight on the long awaited gathering, at which the Russians consider a "second front" in western Europe an important topic.

Despite their long, hard trip, Hull and Eden were eager to begin the discussions with Molotov. Both the American and British foreign officials expect the conference to lay the groundwork for future conversations among United Nations leaders.

Moscowites stood in long lines to purchase newspapers, all of which splashed pictures of Hull, Eden and Molotov at the airport clear across the bottom of the front pages.

The Moscow press front-paged the statements made by Hull and Eden upon their arrival, but the newspapers did not comment editorially on the conference.

The U. S. Secretary of State, who made his first airplane trip to get here early and ate his favorite breakfast of American rolled oats. It took considerable effort to locate the rolled oats, an American supply mission furnished six boxes to solve the problem.

Preliminary discussions were held at the Kremlin last evening shortly after the arrival of the American and British visitors at the Moscow airbase.

While the subjects which will be discussed here are a matter of speculation, it was recalled that (Turn to Page Two)

1,180 Parolees In Armed Services

Harrisburg, Oct. 19.—(P)—The Pennsylvania parole board has released 1,180 persons from its supervision to permit their induction into the armed forces.

Chairman Henry E. Hill disclosed today that "every possible cooperation" is being given to aid induction of both those on parole and inmates of institutions selected for military duty through selective service.

"When local boards desire to induct a man we waive supervision," said Hill. "Of course, those in institutions suitable for induction must be eligible for parole to be released."

Prison draft board panels determine eligibility of inmates for service and those qualifying are freed on condition they go directly into the armed forces. The men must have completed minimum sentences, however, since that is a statutory requirement for parole.

Kickoff Meeting of United War Fund Drive Enthusiastic

"We must put our faith in our boys. They, in turn, must know that we are behind them."

Thus did Bishop E. P. Wroth of Erie, homecoming to his own Warren county, keynote the kickoff meeting of the Warren County United War Fund Campaign for $88,700, the largest goal in more than a quarter of a century. Nearly 300 workers, including a very large contingent from the county outside of Warren borough, applauded the remarks of Bishop Wroth, Chairman E. W. Johnson, and other speakers. In the opinion of oldtime "campaigners," it was one of the most enthusiastic opening assemblies in the history of Warren drives.

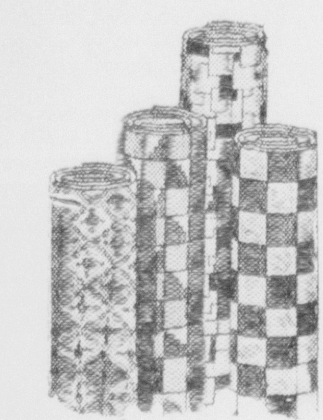

The rafters of the Y. W. C. A. banquet hall were ringing with martial music long before the meeting itself officially opened, as workers arrived in small groups of threes and fours or in larger contingents of a dozen or more. County delegates, some of them obliged to drive twenty or thirty miles, were among the most faithful in their attendance. The High School Band, under the skilled direction of Harry A. Summers, provided a colorful sendoff and reminded everyone, even before a word was said, that the job at hand was a wartime job, a patriotic job.

After an invocation of Rev. Harold C. Warren of the First Presbyterian Church, the salient points of the campaign were explained by Chairman Edward W. Johnson of the General Committee. He stated that this was not only one of the biggest, but the most important, money-raising drive in the history of the county; a "Give campaign" not a "Lend" campaign; (Turn to Page Ten)

H. J. Onions, of the DeLuxe, stated this morning that he will need many women within a short time. All of this adds up to the fact that unless women respond and do so quickly Warren's war effort will suffer.

One of the facts in the drive for women workers looms large and that is the need of a nursery where children may be left while women are at work. This has heretofore not loomed large in the picture but from all indications such a need will be felt soon and some steps must be taken to cope with the problem.

Warren today has 350 women employed at Corry, close to 100 in Buffalo and many in Jamestown. It is expected that many of these will return to Warren as the cost of living away from home, board, room, cartage, etc., is a big item in the living costs in other places.

The problem is a distinctive one for Warren at the present time and must be met.

Warren Flier Completes His 50th Mission

dropped their bombs. I was in the low element and we circled the convoy just inches above the water.

"All the day was concentrated on our element and it sure was hot. As the last bombs fell from the high element we turned on our bomb run trying to dodge flak bursts and water spouts, heading for the lead position of the convoy."

"We dropped our bombs on a vessel laden with troops and had to pull up to clear the ship, then down to skim the water again and make as poor a target of ourselves as possible. The tail gunners were treated to a beautiful sight because most of our bombs hit home."

"A destroyer must have been hit in the powder magazine because it blew up and sank instantly, while other ships were severely damaged. We got out of there in a hurry, but I know some of the other ships sank after we left. Several of our planes were damaged badly, but we all made it back except one which was hit directly while on a bomb run."

On the take-off for a mission shortly before he completed his 50th mission Lt. Bleech's plane was caught by a heavy gust of wind and thrown into the slipstream, nosing up, diving, and slipping, but he maintained control of it and, despite being only a few feet off the ground, brought it to level flight.

Lt. Bleech entered the army in July, 1941, and started his combat training in January, 1942, at Gunter Field, Alabama, and Columbus, Mississippi. He received his commission September 6, 1942. Prior to his enlistment he attended Edinboro Teachers' College in Pennsylvania.

the Communist party organ Pravda declared last week that the Russians intend to use the meeting to broach the issue of a "second front," by which they mean the opening of an Allied offensive across the English channel and the North Sea, an operation which they have repeatedly urged the western Allies to undertake. It is not Russia's intention at this time, Pravda added, to discuss post-war frontiers or the status of the Baltic states "any more than the borders of the United States or the status of California."

BULLITT AND SAMUEL ON SAME PLATFORM

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—(P)—William C. Bullitt, Democratic candidate for mayor of Philadelphia, and the rest of his ticket were pledged today to a platform calling for a "minimum working week of 40 hours in city hall," abolition of the municipal wage tax, renewal of a fight for revision of the city charter, and modernization of the water and sewer systems.

Bullitt and his Republican opponent, acting Mayor Bernard Samuel, spoke from the same platform before the Citizens Council on City Planning yesterday, and agreed that the city should accept federal aid in carrying out a public works improvement program.

However, Samuel said no "concrete plan" for federal aid has been developed as yet and "we are going ahead on our own resources without waiting for planning aid from Washington."

GOV. MARTIN LOSES BET ON LOAN DRIVE

Harrisburg, Oct. 19.—(P)—Governor Martin today started looking around for 20 bushels of apples to pay off a debt with Governor Griswold of Nebraska on the outcome of the Third War Loan drive.
Conceding defeat on the basis of reports that Pennsylvania subscribed 112 per cent of its quota while Nebraska's total was 115 per cent, the governor declared:
"We'll send him the apples. We can get them up in Centre county or down in Adams county. I am sorry we can't send as good quality as usual, but the apples aren't as good this year."
Governor Griswold bet a hog that Nebraska would win.

Rabbit Show Proved Success Showing Interest in Breeding

In spite of the abrupt wintry trend in the weather, there were a large number of entries and a good attendance at the first Domestic Rabbit Show sponsored by the Warren County Domestic Rabbit Association.

The fact that this show was so successful in view of weather conditions gives definite proof of the deep interest which lies in the advancement of the rabbit industry in this locality.

F. A. Lind was judge of the show. Judge Lind's background of years of experience in the industry gives him a thorough knowledge of the individual merits of the various specimens.

Second places were awarded to Fitzgerald's Rabbitry, Junior New Zealand White Buck; R. C. Bull, Junior New Zealand White Doe; R. C. Bull, New Zealand White 6-8 Doe; R. F. Crippen, New Zealand White 6-8 Buck; Glenn H. Patch, New Zealand White Senior Buck; W. V. Johnson, New Zealand White Senior Doe.

Coming in for close places were entries from the following: R. F. Crippen, New Zealand White Senior White Doe; Fitzgerald's Rabbitry, New Zealand White Senior Buck; R. C. Bull, New Zealand White 6-8 Buck; Russell Luther, New Zealand White 6-8 Doe; Fitzgerald's Rabbitry, New Zealand White Junior Buck; R. C.

Bull, New Zealand White Junior Doe.

By continuously striving to raise the standards of the Domestic Rabbit the association is out to make a name for itself, and while doing so, it is lending a big hand during this critical period in relieving today's meat shortage. With the official launching of the lion upon a career which shows prospects of being of real credit to the industry at large, the emphasis is on "Bigger and Better Bunnies!"

REALLY FINDING OUT

Residents of this section are really finding out that the government regulation of newspapers means business. Newsdealers of the city and the Warren News Company have been notified that Buffalo Sunday papers are out for the duration. The regulation of newspaper has caused the Sunday papers to be discontinued in this section until the war ends. The regulation is also affecting the New York and other Sunday papers. The order causes the Sunday papers to discontinue circulating except in their own trade territory. It may even come to a regulation that Warren will receive before long only Pittsburgh and Erie Sunday papers. And the newspapers have been notified that another cut in their newsprint supply will come soon.

INTERNATIONAL AIR ROUTES

Some weeks ago, in a light moment, we wrote about the flood of applications for permissions to establish new air lines, and suggested that all one needed was a pencil, some paper and a stamp.

There have been no repercussions. Nobody has taken us to task. This is neither retraction nor apology. But it does seem worth while to note that behind a rather ludicrous flood of irresponsible applications is a good backlog of sound projects sponsored by reputable concerns well capable of operating vast networks of airlines.

Nobody knows just what Pan-American, pioneer and leader in transoceanic flying, has in mind. Its thinking is said to be along the line of joint super-combine which, in the words of the authoritative trade magazine American Aviation, "would give the United States a single-company front to face the world in global air traffic after the war."

Meanwhile, however, a number of demonstrably successful domestic operators want to branch out. One of the most ambitious is Transcontinental and Western, a domestic transcontinental pioneer, which would like to expand across both Atlantic and Pacific.

Its projects would link New York, Chicago, Boston, Detroit and Washington with London and Paris, and would tie Los Angeles in with Honolulu. Since the line now operates between New York and Los Angeles, this would give it coverage from Paris to Honolulu.

If TWA were permitted to establish such routes, we should have at least three big American international air systems—Pan-American (and Panagra, which it shares with Grace), American Export, and TWA.

The TWA application is worthy of serious consideration because, while the company's commercial public utility service has been entirely domestic for 18 months it has been operating over-ocean for the Air Transport Command.

It will be a long time, probably, before the Civil Aeronautics Board even tentatively decides on any specific application unless it has a war angle. But informally, on the basis of suggestions which it has invited, the Board already is considering the fundamental approach through which the claims of particular applicants will be judged.

MERCHANT MARINERS

During the next year a minimum of 35,000 additional experienced officers and seamen must be found to man the American merchant marine, if we are to maintain our record of meeting every invasion need, the War Shipping Administration says.

In the past year the personnel has been increased from 70,000 to 115,000 men. By a year from now we must have at least 175,000 seamen. About half of the 60,000 that are needed can be trained. The result must be pulled from less important shore jobs to which they have "retired" from the sea.

Don't let anybody tell you that the shipping crisis has been licked. It's down, but it isn't yet out.

MORE HASTE, MORE SPEED

Thursday the young man was in North Africa yearning to be home after months in Africa, Sicily and Italy. Sunday night he slept in his own bed in a New York suburb, after submitting to newspaper interviews and dining with his family. He was delayed somewhat by headwinds.

That was no stunt. The trip could have been made faster, if there had been urgent reason. It involved only ordinary routine transatlantic flying.

Can you remember when it was a day's job to hitch up the old mare, drive five or six miles to town, do the week's shopping and drive back home?

VITAMIN A—THE EASY WAY

Carrots, carrots everywhere—there are 50,000 cases of topped carrots waiting to be consumed. Fifty thousand cases is 735 tons, or 49 carloads, or enough for almost everyone to fill out a meal or two. This bountiful supply has resulted from a push by the Department of Agriculture to get growers to produce this easily-grown crop. You can buy them in larger quantity than usual and store them at home easily. There is no space allocated for their storage, and they may go to waste unless they are moved out of the markets quickly.

The potato crop is also rising to new and dizzy height, with every crop report.

Summer's passing means we have gotten rid of a lot of blood relations—mosquitoes.

If you've been working crossword puzzles, maybe War Ration Book 4 won't be so tough.

The Most Important Question to Be Settled

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Over at Agriculture, they are readying a national campaign to make the soybean a staple article in the U.S. diet.

The reason is that like peanuts (which also are being pushed) soybeans are full of fats and vitamins and agricultural experts have no doubt that eventually they will become one of America's important food products. The object of the coming campaign is to make soybeans just that now while they are a valuable substitute for foods that are short.

Every possible use of soybeans will be propagandized but emphasis will be laid on their value as "meat extenders" in meat loaf and sausage and in soups and stews.

BEHIND this campaign is a story. The dislocations and shortages in food products are resulting in a change in the American diet and not all of it for the better.

It should be stressed now that there is no question of maintaining the nutritive level. The problem is to direct this change in diet into healthful channels.

For example, the butter shortage which is likely to get worse has resulted in a marked decrease in the consumption of bread. Considering that serious, since bread still is the staff of life. Agriculture department experts prevailed upon OPA to lower the point value of margarine as butter point values were upped. But the consumption of bread continued to curve down.

The food experts are trying other means to increase consumption. The production of sandwich spreads, leaner butter, jams and jellies is being stepped up.

Similar is the fact that whole milk shortages in some sections have caused a considerable decline in the consumption of cereals.

HERE is a quick survey of the food outlook as agriculture officials see it. Meat, pork, beef and veal will be more plentiful for some months but if the war drags on another year, feed shortages may cut the meat supply below any levels experienced so far. The supply of fresh, frozen, and canned fish is only about two-thirds of peace time. Poultry and eggs are at record production and consumption levels.

Fresh vegetables have been plentiful, but only those housewives who canned their Victory gardens will be able to load the tables with canned vegetables this winter. There will be plenty of potatoes.

As a result of these forced changes in eating habits, food experts predict some marked post-war changes in the American diet. The ration has and its introduction to quick-frozen and dehydrated foods and apparently likes them. The same will be true of soybeans, say the experts, once the nation as a whole is made aware of their nutritional value.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Two frightened people, and with cause, are Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray. They're doing a job they've never done before, and how they come out of it depends on you, and you, and you there, in the 18th row center.

They started a new movie together the other day. They started it in a set representing the hall and stairway of a moneyed, if decorative, polyglot, home somewhere in Los Angeles's fashionable Los Feliz section.

This section is or has been the abode of numerous screen notables, including Alan Ladd, Estelle Taylor, Cecil B. DeMille and Lily Pons, but the home in question came out of the fiction of James M. Cain, the super-realist who wrote "The Postman Always Rings Twice" and has been pounding the keys of punchy realism ever since.

DOWN in the hall stood MacMurray, a bright young insurance salesman. Up on the balcony, its railing draped with a gaudy Spanish shawl, stood Barbara Stanwyck, for this picture a sleek blonde, clad in nothing more than a wrap-around of Turkish towelings. A studio censor had just approved the costume, on the reasonable grounds that the girl had just come from a sun bath rather than one of the tub variety, and obviously had a sun-suit under the towelings. Boy meets Girl—in the Cain manner.

Landlords in rent control areas who fail to file with the Area Rent Director a registration statement within 30 days after renting a housing accommodation not previously registered will be subject to a refund to the tenant of any rent charged in excess of the maximum which OPA sets, Frank S. Anderson, Erie county rent director, announced today.

Out of this meeting would spring happenings very foreign to the screen's customary Boy-meets-Girl tale. "Double Indemnity" is the story of a couple of smart lovers who figure they can murder the girl's husband, collect on his insurance, and live happily ever after. The heroine, that's MacMurray—is a smooth article who, as it develops, would murder the gal to save his own skin. The heroine—that's Barbara—has a larceny in her eyes and murder in her past. Whole-some, charming people, as you soon gather. If it weren't for Edward G. Robinson, playing the insurance company investigator, they'd stay at large, but the law and the Hays office get them in the end.

WHEN Billy Wilder, the director, sent Miss Stanwyck the script she turned it down. Impertinent, she turned it down again. Dared, she said yes, but she's still scared.

Ditto MacMurray. He's accustomed to towering over pretty, clever, and bantering females, playing the hard-to-get hero. What will fans think discovering that he's portraying a double-crossing heel, a murderer?

You can tell Barbara Stanwyck how Bette Davis thrives on poisonous roles. You can tell MacMurray that Robert Montgomery not only wasn't ruined but was critically acclaimed for his psychopathic murderer in "Night Must Fall." They're still two frightened people.

Three Waves to be in Warren Seeking Recruits Wednesday

Three Waves will arrive in Warren tomorrow to provide information for women in this area concerning the opportunities for women in the largest Navy in the nation's history. Wave headquarters will be at the West Penn Oil Co., where interviews will be conducted tomorrow from two until nine p. m. They are Ensign Wanda McLaughlin, Yeoman Ember Heyne and Pharmacist's mate Virginia Hanson, all recruiting specialists. Ensign McLaughlin, in a communication to the Times-Mirror points out that American women traditionally shared dangers as well as privileges.

"In times of crisis, men and women have always stood shoulder to shoulder," she said, "In Revolutionary days, women loaded the old powder muskets in smoke-filled log forts. When Indian arrows or enemy bullets found their mark, they tore strips from their petticoats to bind wounds. They knew how to mold bullets at the family hearth, and when lead for shot ran low, they melted down their cherished pewter household articles. They served as they could.

"In the new and ruthless warfare of the 1940's women face hardships, trials, and challenges with the courage they showed in those trying days. The women of today are no less brave than our pioneer women, and now, new fields of activity are open to them. They have an unprecedented opportunity to serve. One of these opportunities is with the Navy which enlists and trains women to perform vital technical administrative and clerical duties.

"There is a need for filling 50,000 billets in the Navy, every one a post of responsibility requiring a trustworthy Wave who places service to her country ahead of everything else."

All eligible young women in Warren and adjacent communities are urged to call at the West Penn Oil Co., between the hours of 2:00 and 9:00 p. m. to obtain further information about the Waves.

Youngsville, Oct. 18—The Methodist Men's Brotherhood elected officers for the coming year at their meeting Thursday night at the church. Robert Albright was elected president, William Clark, vice president, and Wallace Lake, secretary and treasurer.

After a business meeting at which plans were discussed to paint the church dining room and men's class room on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week, pictures were shown. These were moving travel pictures taken in Africa and Asia Minor. They were specially interesting as many of these places are currently mentioned in war news. SOUTH PACIFIC—"What It Takes" is the U. S. Navy's caption for this official photograph showing high octane gasoline arriving at a South Pacific base.

"What it takes"

ON EVERY battle front, the finest fighting men in history are hewing out tomorrow's Victory. The home front's biggest job is to keep the supply streams rolling to these fighters.

Above, at the right, is "precious cargo" (the Navy's phrase) coming ashore on a South Pacific island. It is the high octane gasoline that sends bombers soaring out to blast the Japs.

Oil drove the ships that carried this cargo from the United States. Gasoline drove the Navy barges that brought it in through reefs and shallows. Supplies for the toiling men arrive in the same way.

All this goes on continuously around the world. America has a big advantage over the Axis in petroleum quality and quantity. It gives United Nations' fighting men one of their margins for Victory.

That superiority was developed under a competitive business system which has made America strong. Oil companies, operating as a part of this system, constantly found new ways to provide better products and finer service at lower prices.

In the Victory World of tomorrow, you can expect this same competitive business system to bring you even better service than you knew before.

G-GIRL

Chapter I

IT was a stifling day. The heat stretched over the city thick and motionless as an asbestos curtain. It pressed down on government clerks hurrying back to their buildings for lunch. It blasted the faces of the bustling men with brief-cases as the swinging doors of the capital's air-cooled hotels deposited them on the scorched sidewalk.

But inside Temporary Building U, overlooking Pennsylvania Avenue and the Department of Commerce, Sally Thayer, two days removed from River Edge, Michigan, was oblivious of the steaming weather. A four-page questionnaire, covered with questions in small type, lay spread out in front of her. Sally had now reached the bottom of page four. She gave the questionnaire a final look, hoping she hadn't made any mistakes then crossed the room to the receptionist's desk.

The receptionist looked quickly at the questionnaire and then said, "I'll have you see Mr. Chase when he is free. He takes care of all the stenographic help. Will you sit down?"

Sally found a chair at the end of a long row of men and women all clutching questionnaires. She tried to look composed, but actually she was so excited she was wondering how she could ever talk coherently to Mr. Chase.

SUPPOSE she didn't get a job? Mr. Chase might think she hadn't experience enough to handle vital war correspondence. But I've got to get a job, any kind of a job, Sally thought desperately. After the end-of-River Edge gave me and the way Mother and Dad carried on, I'd never dare show my face there again till I'd been a success.

The crisp tones of the receptionist cut like a knife through Sally's reveries. "Miss Thayer, see Mr. Chase in Room 1143 at the end of the hall," Sally's dream burst like an overcharged balloon in the sizzling room.

Out the door and down the hall past rows of open office doors. Her feet beat a fast tattoo on the hard linoleum floor. Please, please, she prayed silently, just a job, any job, but I want to work here in Washington so badly.

Here it was, Room 1143. Personnel Placement and Management. The sign hung above a double door which stood wide open. Sally hesitated a second, then walked expectantly through to the room beyond.

Sally started down the narrow aisle, wondering how she could ever find Mr. Chase. Then she noticed crudely painted signs which hung on the pillars that divided the room into sections. Evidently these sections with no partitions between them were called "rooms." She stopped at the desk nearest the pillar marked 1143.

"Mr. Chase?" she asked the girl at the desk. The girl never looked up.

"Three desks back of me."

SALLY maneuvered her way toward Mr. Chase, and stopped by his desk. He was on the telephone. He waved his hand at a chair by the desk.

"What do you think I am—God?" he inquired of the telephone. "How can I possibly find 25 stenographers by Tuesday? I can't even find one for myself. Give you plenty of dollar-a-year men, but stenographers, no. They're going out of Washington instead of in. Must be the publicity we're getting."

He banged the phone down, and turned to Sally. "Now what can I do for you?"

Sally handed him the questionnaire she had filled out in the inner office. "I wanted to see you about a position."

Mr. Chase turned the pages quickly. "All the way from Michigan. You'll probably stay two weeks, have hysterics one day, and go back home in a hurry. That's the way they come... and go."

Sally controlled an impulse to have the hysterics then and there. "No, Mr. Chase. If I can get a job, I want to stay here—and work hard—and—help win the war." She felt she was babbling like a child.

He looked across the desk at the bright-faced girl who was watching him so intently.

"Steady gray eyes, a gay mouth now rigidly controlled, dark, fluffy hair framing an oval face. More than her attractiveness, Mr. Chase noted the look of spirit, of challenge about her."

He smiled suddenly, remembering the days when he too wanted to set the world on fire. "Miss Thayer, you're the first person in the last hundred I've heard say that whom I believe. I think you will work hard. But it's my private hunch you'll leave Washington a different girl from the one you are today. You're going to work in pretty tough town. Tough means every type of person in the country is represented here. Some of them you'll never see—some of them you'll wish you had never seen. You're a long way from River Edge, Michigan. You're on another planet."

But Sally's face was glowing. "I know," she said softly. "It feels like another planet already."

BUT Mr. Chase was the hard-bitten personnel man again. "You did come here for a job, not a sociology lecture. We've got so many jobs, you can even have your choice. They're all bad." He brooded over a sheaf of papers. "Afraid I can't dig up anything over sixteen-sixty right now. Here's the best of the lot. Over in the copper branch of the materials division. One of the assistant directors over there needs a second secretary. Stenographer is about all you'd be. The other girl gets whatever good work there is. Know anything about copper?"

Sally shook her head. "Only that it comes out of the ground."

"Never mind. Most of the men over there are pretty vague about the whole business, too. Don't quote me, you understand." Mr. Chase looked severe.

Sally laughed. "I'm sure I'll thank you a thousand times."

"All right, then. Report tomorrow morning at 8:15, Room 1809, Temporary R. Personnel over there will take care of you. Now all you've got to do is hang onto your head—and your heart. Don't worry about that. Mr. Chase, I'll stay intact. Good-bye."

Sally barely felt the pavement beneath her feet. She wanted to smile at every casual passer-by.

I'm here and I have a job and I'm going to be a success, her thoughts whirled like a giddy merry-go-round. Tomorrow, tomorrow, tomorrow is the day.

A Family of Infidels Converted

SAM JONES

A minister once told me that he was holding a love feast one Sunday morning. One man got up and told how he was nurse in the lap of religion, cradled in piety, and brought up in the fear of God. By and by another young man, who had just been licensed to preach, got up and said: "I'm sorry I have not had the experience of some who have spoken. I will tell you what Christ did for men."

"My father and mother were infidels, and so were my nine brothers and sisters. Two years ago I went to a camp meeting. I went by myself, merely to have some fun. I was standing up by a post when all at once the preacher's words began to burn their way into my heart and I found myself transfixed to that post."

"When the man of God finished preaching he invited penitents to come forward, and the first thing I knew I was on my knees begging for mercy. They encouraged me and helped me. When the meeting was over, and all were leaving the tent, they said, 'We will pray with you outside in the woods.'"

"I looked up and said, 'I didn't know till an hour ago that there is a God in Heaven, and a fearful ruin for sinners in the world to come. I will never leave this spot until I make peace with God and get Him to forgive me, and walk out a child of God and an heir of eternal life.'"

"The sunlight was pouring into my face. I turned my eyes inward and the fact flashed on me, 'Your father will despise you, your mother will laugh at you, and your brothers and sisters will drive you from home.' 'I am going to stick to God and religion,' I said. 'If everybody on earth forsakes me, I am going to stand firm.'"

"Just before I got home I turned into the woods at the roadside and knelt down and prayed God to help me. 'I know I am going into a den of lions; Lord, help me to be faithful.' 'I got on my horse and rode home, went to supper, and nobody spoke a word to me. I was happy but spoke not a word.'"

"About a week after that, my eldest brother and myself were sitting on a log, talking. We had been splitting rails and were tired, and had sat down to rest. I said to him: 'Brother Tom, do you know I got saved down at the camp meeting? I looked at him, and the great tears were running down his face. He said, 'We have all noticed the change in you. Mother says you look and talk just like an angel. You don't swear and you don't drink or do anything wrong. Do you reckon the preacher could do the same for me?' 'I will go with you to the meeting and God will bless you,' said I."

"My brother Tom got gloriously converted, I said to him, 'Brother, we are going to put the candles in the candlestick now and light up that infidel home of ours. Let us be faithful.'"

Indication of Splendid Season Seen in First Talented Players' Offering

Warren Players were most fortunate in their choice of "The Night of January 16th" for the opening production of a wartime season in which four public plays will be substituted for the usual schedule of studio meetings and patrons who save the initial offering will want to take no chances of missing something good by staying away from the trio yet to come.

However, Warren play-goers have learned through past experience that they seldom "take a chance" when going to a Players' presentation. The writer is not alone in a biased opinion that such local productions are always far above the average amateur performance. One of the reasons has been unanimous in their commendation and expressions of wonder at the quantity and quality of talent found in the club's ranks.

"The Night of January 16th" was no exception to the rule of a winner every time and individual hits added up to an impressive score. In the leading roles were three of the club's best, Betty Field, Homer Fleming and Jack MacDonald, the latter doubling as director and carrying both parts with marked ability.

As was to be expected, the greater part of the audience interest and attention was focused on the witnesses, the spontaneous applause greeting their dismissal from the witness box attesting to really remarkable performance. Each in his own characterization contributed and built up the interest and suspense, Arthur Langdon as the county medical examiner; Mary Helen Johnson as the wife of the janitor; Dave Smith as the private "dick"; Nik Geraci as the "copper" on the beat; Anne Krantz as the sorrowing widow and George Cunningham as her less-sorrowing father; Fern Mostert as the Swedish housekeeper with definite ideas about sin; Joan Hoyer as the handwriting expert who could be wrong; Nelson Johnson as the gangster in love with Karen; Rachel Mahaffy as the very recently widowed cabaret dancer. To Gerald McGee, however, went the greatest tribute—a genuine scream from a woman seated near him in the audience as he struggled to his feet with the shocking statement "I did it!"

In the background, but just as necessary to courtroom authenticity were Helen Morrow as the prison matron; Monty McClure as the bailiff; Ton Conway as Judge Heath; Robert Dunham as clerk of court and Jean Dunham as court stenographer.

The jury for both performances was selected from the audience, with a verdict for acquittal each night. That of Thursday has already been named and on Friday William Hill was foreman for William Johnston, Jr., James Prantz, Mazie Deardorff, Lutra de Carvalho, Frances O'Neill, M. E. Morrow, Robert Jewell, Dorothy Walsh, Judge Allison Wade, Joan Lavery and Paul Pettit.

On the production staff were the following: Set, George Senger, Monty McClure, Duane Wilder, Mary Helen Johnson, Nik Geraci, Fred Plummer, Tom Schorman, Guinevere Knapp; Lighting, William Dasher, Tom Schorman; Properties, Mildred Schorman, Louise Nelly; costumes, Frances Bates, Mary Margaret Wade, Maybelle Alexander; scripts, Mabel Lauffenburger; stage manager, Helene McClure; box office, Maybelle Alexander; program committee advisor, Margaret Wholeben.

SIoux FALLS, GERMANY

Here's a sample of what we didn't get because our fighting allies did!

THEY took it...in London and Lidice. In Warsaw, Prague, Paris, everywhere the swastika cast its evil shadow.

We didn't get it here in Sioux Falls. You don't see the flag with the crooked cross over our City Hall.

Well, let's not get smug about it. One of the biggest reasons is that our fighting allies were keeping it away from us while we were getting ready.

And what ingrates we'd be now if we don't do everything we can to help.

Our allies need food. Clothing. Medicines. They need them to keep fighting...to break the yoke of Axis domination.

The National War Fund is simply a new, efficient mechanism for providing them in the quickest possible time with the least amount of red tape.

But the National War Fund fights on two other fronts, too. It fights with our own fighting forces through the USO. It fights on the Home Front, too, by combining its appeal with that of our own local agencies.

Look over the list of agencies. Figure out what you'd give each one...and double it!

There are always certain local needs. So this united campaign likewise is for money that stays right here for our local use, our day nurseries, our own needy townfolk of all ages, races, creeds, and colors.

HOME SWEET HOME...Here was the core and center of your life...burned to the ground by a vandal Axis torch. Russia has many, many scenes like this...and Greece, Jugoslavia, Norway, and...remember a village called Lidice? We've been lucky in our town. Seems like a good idea to sort of celebrate our good luck by sharing with the less lucky.

G-GIRL

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW

YESTERDAY: After being apprehensive over her chances of landing a job in Washington, Sally Thayer is placed as a secretary at $1600 a year. She is overjoyed, despite the pessimistic warnings of Mr. Chase, the personnel director, and can hardly wait until morning to start work.

IT WAS eleven o'clock that next morning before Sally actually discovered where she was going to work. She had spent the previous hours filling out three copies of her original application, having them notarized, being fingerprinted, signing a buy bonds pledge, making out a hospitalization application, listening to a black-haired man rattle off a speech on the importance of the division she was to work in, and collecting an armful of literature on what to do in Washington in her spare time.

All the articles Sally had read on life in Washington hadn't prepared her for the complexity of starting a job. I wonder if it takes as long to get fired as it does to get hired, she thought as she waited for the third assistant in personnel placement and management to escort her personally to the room where she was to work. Personally—because the War Commission wanted its employees to feel immediately at home.

I certainly feel anything but at home, Sally thought dazedly. She had covered miles of corridors in the wake of one after another of the exuberant personnel staff. Though all concerned called her "Miss Thayer" cordially, she felt more anonymous than an elephant at a circus. In fact, the whole business of becoming a G-Girl reminded Sally of a circus. Somebody must have figured out the procedure when he was sleeping, Sally decided.

Finally she reached her desk. It was at the end of a long line of desks in a huge room swarming with humanity. "Temporarily you're sitting in the allocations division," the personnel woman explained, "because Miss Lyons—she's the secretary you're to assist—doesn't have an extra desk near her. But before long we'll get you settled in the right place. Actually, we're lucky to have a desk for you at all. Here's Miss Lyons now. I'll leave you in her hands."

MISS LYONS was a thin blond girl with an exaggerated pompadour. "I'm certainly glad to know you're going to help me," she greeted Sally. "Till we get together I'll just send some typing down to you. You can type, can't you?"

Sally said in a surprised voice, "Of course." How could she have been hired as a stenographer if she couldn't type?

"When it comes lunch time stop—take the 1:30 shift," Miss Lyons continued. "I eat at 12:30 and you can sit at my desk while I'm gone. Not that you'll know anything, but—ou'll look official. Did you get your vaccination this morning?"

Sally shook her head. Miss Lyons went on. "We've all supposed to take the Patriotic War Commission employees must set an example to the other agencies, so "I suppose you're going to faint," he taunted her.

we're the goats. Why don't you go down now and get it over with? I haven't any jobs this minute. You go to the basement health room on G corridor."

"I suppose I might as well," Sally agreed doubtfully. Getting vaccinated was just about the last thing she wanted to do that minute after the confused morning she'd had. "See you later," Miss Lyons said cheerfully.

She was the only victim in the health room. After battling with the frenzied mob in the elevator, Sally had decided everyone in the building was lunching simultaneously today. It was peaceful in the bare white room. Through a half-door she could see a tall thin-faced man taking off a white coat. As she stood uncertainly in the room, he half turned and caught sight of her. He groaned and pulled the coat on again. "Just when I thought I was through," he muttered. "Come on in, sister. What are you waiting for?"

SALLY flushed and pushed the door open. "Roll up your left sleeve," the man commanded. Sally saw he held the needle all ready in his hand. It looked as long as a dagger as it glinted in the sunlight. Sally shivered.

"I suppose you're going to faint," the voice was weary. The needle scratched her arm abruptly.

Sally's dizziness disappeared. She retorted angrily. "I am not." Then, feeling the need to justify her reaction to the needle, "It's just that I had to get up pretty early to get to work, and I skipped breakfast."

The doctor's lips twisted in an ironical smile. "Lady, it just so happened that I haven't been to bed at all. I spent a pleasant night removing two beautifully overgrown appendices, delivering a set of twins, and binding up an artistic knife case."

Sally forgot her arm. "But why?"

"Haven't you heard? There's a war on. And there are a lot of doctors in the war. And there are too many patients in Washington hospitals. So I do just a wee bit more work than usual."

Sally was aghast. "But how can you stand it?"

The doctor's laugh was not friendly. "Didn't anyone ever tell you that there are a great many unpleasant things to be endured in this world? Or have your parents kept you wrapped up carefully in cellophane?"

It was Sally's turn to be angry. "I'd like to know why you are acting as though I were a coddled child. I wouldn't have come to Washington if I hadn't wanted to work hard."

"WOULDN'T you? I wonder. I think you're just another one of these girls who thinks it's going to be glamorous to work here. Next best to doing a Mata Hari act. I'll give you a month to find out differently—and go home to Mama."

Sally pulled down her sleeve violently and turned toward the door. "I think you are without doubt the most unpleasant individual I have ever seen. I hope the Army get you and puts you right up in the front line."

The doctor opened the door generously. "So do I, baby, so do I. Then I wouldn't have to waste good vaccine on you."

Sally snatched the knob out of his hand and furiously banged the door behind her. She was still shaking with rage as she got into the elevator. The man was positively insulting.

A pile of schedules lay in her incoming box on her desk. She grabbed up the first one and began putting carbon paper between the sheets. I'll show that doctor I'm no sissy, she thought angrily. She didn't stop to think there was no reason why she should see the infuriating doctor with the sandy hair and disturbing brown eyes ever again. But this was Washington—and anything could happen there.

Dragons Face Mighty Owls in Last Home Game

Running Into Trouble

Typical of opposition opponents of College of Pacific encounter is this picture showing California's Ted Garthwaite about to be swarmed under by Amos Alonzo Stagg's boys, first of whom are Earl Klapstein, 38, and John Verutti, 26. Close inspection reveals fourth COP man behind Verutti with nary a blocker in sight. COP remained unbeaten, 12-6.

SATURDAY'S TILT FEATURE ATTRACTION

Saturday afternoon at 2:30, Warren's Dragons clash with their ancient grid and basketball rivals, the mighty Bradford Owls of McKean county, in a battle that will either take the sting out of Warren's three defeats this year or add one more, depending entirely upon the will of the Blue and White.

Undoubtedly Bradford will present one of the best teams seen on a local field this year, because Coach Edgus of the Owls always brings out a few well worth talking about, but if the local's last home game was any criterion as to what they can do on their own camping site, you can untie the bag and get ready to drop in No. 6.

The Dragons, this year, have been one of the oddest teams on record; a machine with plenty of gas, but lacking a sparkplug to give them that get-up-and-go. Then again, they're liable to turn into a wrecking crew that tears up everything but the stands and run wild against tough opposition. The Owls on the other hand will probably be accompanied by a large array of home-towners and ready to throw everything, even the kitchen stove, into battle to try tying another on the Dragon tail, in like manner of last season. No doubt, Edgus will have a fast ground assault centered around trick reverse plays, with a fine scattering of aerial warfare to keep the locals on their toes.

Last season, the locals, slightly favored as the boys with the chips voted it, trucked to Owltown and came running back with a 13 to 0 can tied on their tails by a smaller outfit. This season, the locals, who haven't turned the tide since 1940, with a scoreless tie, mean to avenge that one and the majority of Blue and White followers think they can do it—if they are wired up right to that sparkplug—Saturday will tell.

Wolverines Defeated By Smethport

Sheffield, Oct. 18. The Sheffield High School team was defeated by the Smethport football team Saturday and it was the worst drubbing the locals have taken this year. Smethport piled up six touchdowns with Erickson, Sample and McMahon starring for the Smethports. McMahon, a 120 pound youngster was a hard boy to stop. In the first quarter Amundson and Kraft had to be taken out of the game due to injuries. Warren Miller a dependable guard for the Sheffield eleven was not even in uniform due to injuries so the team was badly handicapped.

Dave Eisenhauer made the only touchdown for the locals. The line-up: Sheffield 6: Rice, LT, Van Marter, Canada, LG, Kraft, Mencer, LG, Twombly, R. McKean, C, Otta, Thompson, RG, Abundson, Burford, RT, Norcross, R. Maynard, RE, Lyle, Sample, Q, Gibson, McMahon, RH, Barner, W. Maynard, LH, Eisenhauer, Erickson, F, Habzda.

Sheffield substitutes: J. Hoden, Cochran, Potter, Schmiden, Henry, Landers, Stefan, Wolfe, Kasaback.

Montgomery Prepares For Tuneup Fight

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—(P)—Bob Montgomery is taking no chances as he drills for his "tune-up" bout of 10 rounds against Petey Scalzo here next Monday night, in preparation for his next title defense against Beau Jack in November. Bob recalls only too well what happened to him a year ago when Maxie Shapiro caught him unprepared; and what happened to Beau Jack a month ago when Bobby Ruffin gave him a smearing. Besides which, the lightweight champ has a healthy respect for Scalzo, the former featherweight titleholder who has won three straight as a lightweight.

"That Scalzo is a cutie," Montgomery, as he wound up a 10-round drill yesterday, "I've seen him go. He's fast and smart. He can hit some, too. But I'm going to catch up with him and I know I'll win."

"No, I wouldn't say nothing about a knockout. But I'll say it again, that Scalzo is pretty cute."

Notre Dame and Army Again Picked as Two Best Football Teams in Third Weekly Poll

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Oct. 19.—(P)—Notre Dame remained at the top of the standings in the Associated Press, third weekly poll of the season—to the surprise of exactly no one, but College of the Pacific furnished the fireworks by zooming to sixth place.

Two weeks ago the men of Amos Alonzo Stagg weren't even among the also rans but by last week they had nudged into tenth place. Saturday's 16 to 7 triumph over the Del Monte Pre-Flights, however, brought the club four first place votes and a mail sack full of secondary consideration.

But the Notre Dame eleven, which defeated Wisconsin by a 50 to 0 score for its fourth straight conquest, made a run-away of the first place vote as it did of the scramble for the honor of leading the top ten.

Ninety-eight of the 114 voting experts deemed the Irish the best team in the country and none of the opposition placed them lower than third. The South Bend team gathered 1,075 points.

Army, a 52 to 0 winner over Columbia and Notre Dame's Nov. 6 foe, was easily the second choice with 926 points, each first place vote giving a team 10 points, nine for a second and so down to one point for a tenth place ballot.

Navy retained third place despite its narrow 14 to 6 win over Penn State but Purdue vaulted over Pennsylvania for fourth. The Polermakers whipped Ohio State, last year's No. 1 team, 30 to 7, while the Quakers annihilated Lakehurst Naval, 74 to 6.

Texas, Colorado College, Northwestern and Camp Grant banged their way into the second ten, displacing Great Lakes, Dartmouth, Washington and Georgia. The "Reserve" group is led by Minnesota and also includes the Memphis Naval Technicians, whose last two games have been cancelled.

Honor Roll: Heald 145, Russell 149, Aurillo 146, Rich 143, Mack 148.
